Deerfield High School
1959 N. Waukegan
Road
Deerfield, Illinois
Volume 23

As the sun set on another year at Deerfield, students were able to look back on a year of changes and previously unreached plateaus. The year was full of surprises as many students expanded their horizons to encounter new challenges and to earn new rewards. More like a sunrise than a sunset, the past school year characterized the dawn of new era with all its pitfalls and promises. 1985 was the herald of progress, discovery, and success.

Probably the most dramatic change to sweep through the halls of DHS was the arrival of the new principal. With a mixture of dread and anticipation, the student body greeted Dr. John Woodward — the young, motorcycle-riding executive! Dr. Woodward eagerly returned our greetings with warmth and creativity.

He instituted many new additions to the high school scene; leadership camping trips, brainstorming in the auditorium, the school Senate, and the student study area. On the camping trips, students were invited to spend a weekend studying motivational techniques and generally planning the school's future. Auditorium conferences enabled students to air their opinions, while the student Senate helped make their ideas reality. Last, the student study area afforded students the much needed opportunity to work in groups.

Unfortunately, Dr. Woodward was not always synonymous with happy days and carefree frivolity. 1985 saw the demise of the morning announcements, a stricter academic honesty policy, and closed halls for locker visits during all periods. Of course, Dr. Woodward was not responsible for all the changes in the school, he was just the symbol of the new administration.

Adding to the excitement of the year were the remarkable feats of the Cubs and Bears. The Cubs had their most successful season in forty years as they clawed their way to a division title. The Bears followed in the Cubs winning footsteps with an exciting season. When they lost to San Francisco in the Championship, they were only one step away from the Super Bowl.

It seemed only fitting that a new era of such promise and change should be crowned with a new roof. Underneath that roof, Deerfield High School simply burst with accomplishments. The football team provided the inspiration as they made their way to the state championship. New teachers and an updated curriculum were just part of Deerfield's new character, of which friendship and high academic quality remained strong and unchanged.

From the pinnacle of Deerfield's 1984-85 accomplishments, one could see the future on the horizon. Following our years at Deerfield, we began moving into an era that we will shape and we will control. As the sun set on our high school days, we knew that the coming morning held the promise of surprise and excellence.

Tuning In To Stunts

Once again, many DHS students spent a night with their eyes glued to the television set. However, this time they were not at home, but in the Deerfield High School auditorium.

Stunts '84 utilized a television theme. Acts were slotted according to a TV Guide programming list, and were even assigned stations and air times. The format and theme were the results of hard work behind the scenes by the Stunts director, Julie Benton; Assistant Director, David Ottenfeld; Writer, Eric Morris; Stage Manager, Steve Salm; Music Director, Susan Devendorf; and Band Directors, Julie Lewis and Christina Metz.

This year, the entire show revolved around an average Deerfield family. The television set was cleverly worked into their story. Each cast member, Julie Rosenfeld, Larry Finer, Mike Lazar, Sandra McBride, Brian Morris, and Alyssa Winter tuned into different stations.

The programming this year was very diverse and included many surprises. Traditional acts, such as senior girls and guys' kicklines, were ever present. Also, dance troupe under the choreography of Nancy Fillmore and Laura Myers graced the stage. Commercial breaks were done by Scott Marovitz, Doug Levy, Scott Silverman, Sam Samuelson, and Emmy Blume and her company. And, last but not least, bone-shaking drum solos by Scott Marovitz and Dave Picchiatti shook the auditorium walls.

Stunts '84 made history by including faculty in the production for the first time. Courageous teachers braved the lights to give the students a musical lesson. And, roaring in on his Honda motorcycle, Dr. Woodward, the principal, surprised and pleased a large crowd with his appearance.

A great success was enjoyed this year. The new format, the inclusion of the faculty, and the hard work of both the crew and the cast helped make Stunts '84 one of the best ever.

Making their first stunts appearance, the DHS faculty sings a musical lesson to the students.

In front of a mob of starstruck girls, Larry Finer lip syncs to the Elvis Presley hit "Heartbreak Hotel."

Roaring in on his Honda, Dr. Woodward makes a surprise appearance on stage, thus becoming the first principal to appear in a school production.

How fast can you name the ingredients in a Big Mac? Scott Marovitz (center) and Doug Levy try their best as Scott Silverman urges them on.

As Susan Devendorf provides the music, Kathy Hanson sings the song "Everything" from the movie A Star Is Born.

Cast members Brian Morris and Alyssa Winter look on, as Mike Lazar makes his move on Sandra McBride in the family living room.

Dressed in togas, the senior girls' kickline, under the direction of Jodi Goodman, Gina Bonar, and Kathy Hanson, recreate the party scene from Animal House to the classic song "Shout."

Warrior Games LXXXIV

Due to hard work by Student Council Vice President Joanne Frankel, the 1984 Homecoming weekend was a great success. Under the theme "Warrior Games LXXXIV," the activities were a success on every level.

The first phase of Homecoming began with buttons designed by Andy Solem and Lesli Glantz. Then there was Spirit Week, organized by Michelle Langas; Hat and Shade Day, Picnic Day, Button Day, and Red and Grey Day. Publicity, including the famous K-hall window, was organized by Maggie Riggio.

Friday night brought the Pep Rally which was M.C.'d by Andy Solem and Missy Staubitz, humorously disguised as "Super Seniors." Highlights of the evening included a pep talk by newscaster Johnny Morris, the announcement of the Queen and her court, and the class rowdies.

The competition for window painting, organized by Guard, was next on the agenda. The first place window was the Blossom Shop, which was decorated by freshmen and juniors. The climax of the evening was the contest for the Spirit Jug. The seniors won by a landslide and proceeded to celebrate by dancing around the gym, thereby ending the Pep Rally.

On Saturday morning, a parade of the King, Queen, court, and class floats headed for the stadium. The football game was another spirited event, as a capacity crowd cheered the Warrior gridgers on to a victory over Glenbrook South.

After the game, the fans went home to change into more subdued attire for the Homecoming dance, or a special "night on the town." The Junior Class Executive Board, under the leadership of Mrs. Wick and Class President, Katie McHugh, made the dance, "A Night Under the Stars," a huge success.

In all, Homecoming '84 was well organized and implemented. Everything went smoothly and a good time was had by all. "Warrior Games LXXXIV" was a weekend that highlighted a terrific fall.

Spreading a flag between them, seniors Brad Beauchamp and Kevin Baladad use red, white, and blue make-up and clothes to show their Unlimited Senior Authority.

In the midst of senior country, Scott Marovitz lends his voice to the overwhelming din created by the rambunctious senior warriors.

Holding up a pair of football pants, cheerleader Kim Spears steps out of line to do her part in the "A-Cha-Cha."

With arms upraised and mouths open, the senior class demonstrates its spirit in great magnitude. The seniors overwhelmingly won the spirit jug contest with this effort.

Warrior Games

With fists raised high, the Warrior fans cheer the football team on to a 21-13 homecoming victory over Glenbrook South.

Rushing in on the quarterback, all-state nose guard Vic Renaud tries for another sack. Renaud's inspired play on both offense and defense was instrumental in Deerfield's 21-13 victory over Glenbrook South.

Preparing himself to return to the game, Tony Kalama receives first aid from Ms. Sarson.

Behind strong blocking, Bill Crawford rushes outside for nine yards against Glenbrook South.

Powder Puff '84 Girls Get Tough

On Wednesday, October 24, eight junior teams and nine senior squads were on the football field getting ready to play the annual Powder Puff football game.

Each team had to have a minimum of eleven players and a maximum of thirteen players. After picking the teams, came the weeks of practice, the jersey choosing, and finally, the big game.

The Powder Puff game was a big success. Due to the teacher volunteers, Mr. Doren and Mr. Klein, the games were played fairly. When the game started, the seniors took the lead and never looked back. The final score was; Junior girls 7, and Seniors 42. As senior Julie Lewis exclaimed, "The game was a lot of fun. The seniors worked together against all odds to beat the Juniors." As one junior said, "I think all the juniors did have fun." The games were a lot of fun and played a big part in the Homecoming festivities. As Jenny Shaw replied, "I really didn't care who won or lost, but I can't wait till I get to play next year."

Eluding the outstretched arms of junior Elyse Cohen, Tina DiPietro cuts the corner on the right side of the senior line.

Cheering on their team, Stacy Karel and Sylvia Ferro-Nyalka show the senior spirit at the Powder Puff football game.

Preparing to snap the ball, junior center Maggie Riggio faces an imposing senior defensive line.

Marching in perfect order, the 1984 Deerfield Marching Band follows drum majors Christina Metz and Joey Schwarz through the streets of Deerfield during the Homecoming parade.

As the parade marches down Waukegan Road, the pom pom and cheerleading squads help to raise the spirits of the crowd.

A freshman and his homecoming date eagerly await the judging of the homecoming floats.

4 For 4

Once again, the Class of '85 captured the first place ribbon in the homecoming float contest. After a week and a half of late night preparations, the Seniors' float was completed. Guided by Senior Class President Michelle Langas, Susan Maas, and veteran float builder Mrs. Henderson, over twenty proud Seniors constructed an incredible float. The victory marked the fourth straight year the Class of '85 has won the title. The Class of '85 was proud to set a precedent that no other class could duplicate.

Torch in hand, Cary Berman wears a warrior mask and adds the finishing touch to the senior float.

Continuing the class tradition, the senior warriors proudly display their winning float as the freshmen push their stalled float in the background.

Wrapped in each others' arms, freshmen Peter Staubitz and Dyan Naslund get a taste of their first Homecoming dance.

Smiling proudly, senior Homecoming chairman Joanne Frankel takes special joy in seeing all her hard work coming to a successful conclusion.

Four More Years

President Ronald Reagan was once again re-elected, with a record of 525 electoral votes to 13 for Walter F. Mondale. Mondale had won the Democratic nomination after a trying primary campaign in which he went up against Gary Hart and Jesse Jackson. Mondale made history by choosing Geraldine A. Ferraro as his running mate. Many mistakes were made in their campaign; Mondale declared he would raise taxes, questions were asked about Ferraro's finances, and Mondale wanted to talk of topics other than the deficit. On the other hand, Reagan's overwhelming landslide came as no shock. Reagan took every category of voters — the young, middle aged, elderly, professional, blue collar, and, yes, the women. Whatever else happened in the election may take a long time to assess. It had been said that Reagan made people happy and people like to be happy. Mondale, however, did bow to overwhelming defeat with dignity and grace. He was happy to have been endorsed by most of the major unions. In 1984 many new items were pressing up from underneath that the orthodox political issues were to blur in the interminable Democratic primaries. Mondale had to appeal to organized labor and a multitude of special interest groups. When Reagan was soothing and cheering Americans, Mondale tried to puncture their complacency with warnings of doom and taxes. Both candidates were defining themselves as representatives of a new America. There was much controversy over Mondale's selection of Geraldine Ferraro for his running mate. Ferraro brought a great deal of attention to a Vice-Presidency candidacy throughout the campaign. Unfortunately, within a month of her nomination questions arose about her husband's tax returns. She was further burdened by skepticism about her experience and attacks by the Catholic Church for her views on abortion. The true measure of her impact lay elsewhere. She changed the political future for women, though her own future remained uncertain. Ferraro was defeated, but in 1984 women conquered.

Winner Reagan smiles as the rain falls on Democratic candidates Mondale and Ferraro.

Urban War

1984 was the year that the city of Chicago finally took some type of action against gangs in Chicago. It wasn't until 97 lives between the ages of 11 and 20 were lost on the streets. People were not safe in gangs or out of gangs. The public really became aware of this problem when Ben Wilson was fatally shot. Ben Wilson, 17 years old, was one of the best and most promising basketball players in the country. Ben Wilson was only one of the many innocent victims cut down in his prime. The list goes on and on in the number of people accidentally "caught" in the line of fire. Citizens across the country began to fight back against crime on the streets. Bernhard Goetz, the New York "subway vigilante," was a hero for standing up to the gangs. Also, people set up neighborhood watches, in which both residents and the police were notified about any suspicious, gang-like behavior.

India's Disasters

India was a trouble nation in 1984. It was plagued by two major incidents, both of which had a disastrous effect on the country. The problems started off with the assassination of their beloved ruler, Indira Gandhi. Mrs. Gandhi, daughter of the former ruler Nehru, was shot by a security guard who also was a part of the Sikh faction in India. Gandhi's assassination brought about much political turmoil, as the conflicts between the Sikhs and the Hindus became almost out of control. Gandhi's son Rajiv succeeded Indira, and he established temporary peace in India.

The second and more frightening disaster that occurred in India was the Union Carbide chemical leak. A tank containing 45 tons of methyl isocyanate, a deadly chemical used to make pesticides, developed a faulty valve. The gas escaped into the air, and it formed a dense cloud over the Indian city of Bhopal. Thousands of people were inhaling the poison as they slept.

By the end of the week of this disaster, more than 2,500 people were dead. At least 1,000 more were expected to die from the lingering fumes, and 3,000 remained critically ill. The disaster struck hardest at children and old people, who were either too young or too feeble to withstand the poison.

In all, 150,000 people were treated because of the worst industrial disaster the world has known.

The disaster raised many issues in the United States. Citizens who lived near industrial chemical plants wondered about their own safety. And many questioned the wisdom of American industry's efforts to bring third world nations, like India, into the 20th century.

California Gold Rush

In sports, 1984 produced some of those memorable moments that will always be seen in the instant-replays of our minds. The Olympics are always special, as they were in Los Angeles last summer. Many fans were disappointed when the Russians decided to boycott the Olympics, but their views changed when the United States walked off with 83 gold medals. Instead of remembering the boycott, they remembered Mary Lou Retton vaulting to a perfect 10. America fell in love with this pint-sized gymnast as she snatched the gold from Rumanian Ecaterina Szabo. Carl Lewis won four gold medals in track and field equaling the 1936 record set by Jesse Owens. Mary Decker was not as lucky; her Olympic experience was faced with heartbreak. During the 3000 meter run she collided with Zola Budd and lay screaming in the L.A. Coliseum. The Olympics were a great success and the athletes are looking forward to continuing their winning streak in Seoul in 1988.

McDonalds Massacre

Last summer James Oliver Huberty walked into a California McDonald's restaurant carrying a rifle, a shotgun, and a handgun. He proceeded to fire and fatally shot 22 people and wounded 19 others. After firing for 77 minutes, Huberty was killed by a police sharp shooter. No motive for this carnage was found, but earlier that year Huberty had lost his job as a security guard. This incident scared many people because it occurred right before the Olympics. Many countries participating had second thoughts about attending, but everything was under control by the start of the Games.

Ethiopia's Plight

How could it happen that 500,000 Ethiopians died of famine by year's end when silos in Western Europe and in the United States were spilling over with excess grain? Early warnings of this problem were first indicated when Ethiopia's Marxist government refused recommendations to ration food. The heart-breaking sight of children and adults starving to death was shown on American television to shocked Americans. Other tribes left their draught-stricken home lands in the often futile search for food and water. When the draught continued, conditions were even worse. The government did not plan ahead for this crisis and was in desparate need of food.

Countries around the world joined in to help the starving people of Ethiopia. United States transport planes joined the international airlift to ferry food to Ethiopia also.

Even with all this help a long-term solution to the country's draught-related problems was still far in the future. Everyone joined in with helping, from senators to rock stars. A large group of Britain's rock stars produced an album to aid Ethiopia, and performers in the U.S. also produced an album which was a big hit.

Medical Miracles

This year marked the year of miracles in the medical field. Baby Fae and William J. Schroeder were two recipients of hearts to help restore their lives. Baby Fae was born with a defective heart that doctors said would only beat for a few days. After 12 days of her life, a baby baboon's heart was placed in her. The operation started a great deal of controversy. Protests came from animal-rights activists and others who said the surgeons could have looked harder for a human heart. Her struggle for life lasted 21 days and gained worldwide sympathy. The controversy goes on. William J. Schroeder, a 52 year old grandfather, became the second recipient of an artificial heart. After his surgery, his first request was, "I'd like a can of beer." He won the hearts of the nation and support continues. Schroeder appeared to be doing well despite the fact that he suffered a stroke that left his future in doubt. Both cases helped bring about medical advancements.

Heart recipients Schroeder and Faye.

Vanessa: Exposed

Vanessa Williams, the first black Miss America, was also the first Miss America to lose her crown. She resigned when it was learned that Penthouse magazine was publishing nude photographs of her. Her resignation was very controversial, as some people supported her and others found the incident disgraceful. Vanessa's term was served out by first runner-up Suzette Charles. In contrast, Sharlene Wells, Miss America 1985, boasted that her own life was "above reproach."

Gymnasts In Concert

"Daddy," "Honey Bun," "Beam Lovers' Cross," and "Warrior" were just some of the acts in this year's gymnastics show—"Gymnasts In Concert." This year's theme featured tunes from the twenties through the eighties; consequently, there was something for everyone to enjoy.

The nine members of senior club devoted much of their summer vacation time to choosing a theme, choreographing several routines, and assigning tryouts. Many people were worried about the large number of freshmen on the club, but senior club was pleased because the freshmen would provide a good foundation for future years.

With only two months to prepare for the show, the gymnasts had to work hard. Following tryouts during the second week of school, the gymnasts practiced every day. The thirty girls and sponsor Carol Myers combined their talents to create twenty-four exciting acts. For instance, "Magical Mystery Tour" was a rhythmic gymnastic routine which involved hoops, ribbons, and balls. "At the Hop" featured gymnasts flipping off the mini-tramp and springing over the vault. And, "Vahevala" included a chase around the gym during which all four pieces of equipment were utilized.

After the show, some of the more daring gymnasts participated in a flip-flop-a-thon to raise money for leotards. Although it was fun, it was also a lot of work. Many of the gymnasts had trouble walking the next few days, but endured the discomfort as it reminded them of the wonderful time they had.

Overall, the gymnasts produced an enjoyable, fast-paced show. One gymnast summed up everyone's feelings when she said, "Performing in front of cheering family and friends made all the weeks of practice worthwhile. I only wish we could do it again."

Even with a knee brace, junior Maureen Roemer demonstrates her mastery of the beam.

Pausing to smile at the crowd, juniors Debbie Du-Brow, Susan Winter, and Denise Igoika take a breather during their routine to "Lights Out" by Peter Wolf.

Balancing gracefully on the beam, Colleen Brantman prepares to do a cartwheel.

Smiling proudly, president Maria Lombardo has a great time performing to "When You Close Your Eyes" by Night Ranger.

One Summer Night

DHS's enthusiastic theater-goers were treated with a spectacular performance of William Shakespeare's A Midsummer Night's Dream on December 6, 7, and 8. The first dramatic fare the Fine Arts Department produced was a huge success. According to sophomore Larry Finer, "I didn't think Shakespeare could be that funny, but it was hilarious!" And the play was just as much fun to put on, according to sophomore Brad Morris, "It was fun, but I wish someone would have told me that I would have to wear a dress!"

A Midsummer Night's Dream was Shakespeare's tale of four star-crossed lovers, wandering through a forest full of fairies, in search of lost love. The four lovers were Demetrius, Helena, Lysander, and Hermia (played by David Ottenfeld, Katherine Stone, Eric Morris, and Julie Rosenfeld.)

In the forest where Hermia and Lysander plan to meet, there resides a group of spirits that like to meddle in love affairs. One spirit, Robin Goodfellow, also known as Puck (portrayed by Brian Morris), is told to get a love potion so as to make Demetrius and Helena fall in love. But Puck mistakenly puts the love juice in Lysander's eyes. In the end, everything is set straight by Puck's masters and King and Queen of the Fairies, Oberon (Jay Gurevitz) and Titania (Stephanie Heller).

With the furious farce, culminating in a gigantic wedding, and the fine performances by all, A Midsummer Night's Dream succeeded in bringing the brilliance of Shakespeare to the students of DHS.

Fighting for their true loves, Julie Rosenfeld and Katherine Stone battle it out on the stage.

Grinning with excitement, Brian Morris tells his master, Jay Gurevitz, of his delightful pranks.

Heartily shaking hands, Laura Myers thanks the "sweet moon," Alison Gutterman, for her sunny beams.

Moving To The Music

What was one great way to spend a wonderful weekend in Deerfield this year? Go to the Dance Show!! Again this year, Dance Club presented a spectacular show; "Bop till you Drop" The club was led by President Jodi Goodman, Vice President Nancy Filmore, Secretary Laura Mandel, and Senior club members Stacy Karel and Lola Pashwa.

The dancers had been working since November to put on an excellent presentation. Not only did they bop, but the dancers also performed modern, ballet, jazz, lyrical, and character dances. The music ranged from the top 40 hits of the Cars, Duran Duran, Eagles, Wang Chung, and Toto to bizarre music like the "Art of Noise." Special Effects also added to the razzle dazzle of the show. Strobe, fluorescent, and spot lighting helped create the necessary aura for each individual dance. One dance even went so far as to combine fluorescent costumes with wierd lighting to create a really psychedelic effect.

One of the most unique features of the dance show was it's originality. All seventeen dances performed by the troupe were choreographed by the group, itself.

The evening would not have been complete without the crazy antics of the masters of ceremonies, Scott Marovitz and Doug Levy. Doing anything to get a laugh, the two even dressed in tutus and did their own versions of Swan Lake.

"Bop till You Drop" was creative and entertaining all around, but most importantly great fun for those participating. Despite a hard working and practice schedule, the success of the show was all that really mattered. As Anny Deliyannis proclaimed, "It was very hard work, but very, very worth it."

At the height of his graceful leap, prima ballerina and master of ceremonies Scott Marovitz flashes a smile at the audience.

Bopping till they drop, Stacey Karel and Laura Mandel begin the Dance Show with radiant muscles.

Gracefully poised, Laura Myers and Lola Pashwa concentrate on maintaining their perfect balance.

Decked out in tails and top hat, Ross Brown seems to have no problem picking up pretty girls.

Heating up the Deerfield stage, the Devils and the Cowboys duel it out to the tune of "The Devil Went Down to Georgia" by the Charlie Daniels Band.

Girls' Night Out

"This is so exciting-I wish it would never end!" A starry-eyed freshman said as Tornabout 1985 drew to a finish. And this year, the freshmen were not the only starry-eyed people. This year's theme of "Mardi-Gras" was thoroughly enjoyed by everyone.

Before the dance, many couples assembled together to enjoy pre-dance parties. Then, they went on to have fun at the dance, itself.

The dance was held in the DHS cafeteria, which was decorated so beautifully that it hardly resembled the room that students eat in every day. The band, Surrender, played a combination of fast and slow songs that even got the chaperones dancing! However, the highlight of the evening was definitely Jim Franks' rendition of "The Love Boat."

The dance lasted from 8:00 until 11:00, when the last stragglers faded out the door. But Tornabout 1985 did not end there for most people.

Restaurants in both the suburbs and downtown Chicago were brimming with excited and dreamy students wanting to continue the evening, where the girls treat the guys. Some common places to go were; Ron of Japan, Don Roth's, and Windows. After this, most people either drove or were chauffeured home.

Tornabout 1985 Mardi-Gras was a great way to break up the monotonous winter routine, and all couples truly enjoyed themselves.

Clasped in each others arms. Shannon Blair and Stan Olson thoroughly enjoy the dance.

Looking flashy. Tina DiPietro twists her body into irregular shapes.

Enamored of each other. Alex Garcia and Meredith Finer share a special moment.

Turnabout

Snapping to the beat, Ross Brown and Chrissy Le-Veaux boogie down at Turnabout '85.

Arms wrapped around each other, two dancers sway to some romantic music.

Dancing to the awesome music, two sophomores have fun at the dance.

Outlandish Operetta

Swashbuckling pirates, swordfights and timid young maidens all characterized this year's musical, "The Pirates of Penzance." This outstanding production, directed by newly returned professional Cary Libkin, was just as exciting to perform as it was to watch. With orchestra members parading through the aisles, and cast members jumping on a hidden trampoline, the audience was surely entertained.

The impressively talented cast was led by Mike Lazar as Fredrick the young ex-pirate who, after being freed from his piratical indentures went off in search of adventure. His first encounter was with the feisty young Mabel, played by Laura Myers, with whom he fell madly in love. She was the only maiden among her twenty sisters who would consent to speak with him. This would be contrary to the wishes of "poppa" — the Mayor-general portrayed by the quick and able tongued Eric Morris. Suddenly it was realized that through a "Paradox" discovered by the nanny Ruth, performed by Ilyssa Fradin, Fredrick was born on a leap day and thus he was not of age to be freed from his indentures.

A spirited fight ensued between the pirates, the lusty maidens and a group of key-stone cops, led by head sergeant Larry Finer.

This play being an operetta, musical quality was of the utmost importance. Thus, the perfect woman for the job was Tana Larson. She fulfilled her obligation smoothly and even had her own stint on stage. That, combined with the outlandish choreography touches supplied by professional actor Robert Lehman provided upbeat enjoyment and an unmistakably successful production.

Having a chicken fight with swords. Mike Lazar and Scott Marovitz add excitement to the "Pirate King Song."

In a long promenade, the daughters of the Major-general frolic at the beach.

While joking around, pirates Keith Kousins and Ilyssa Fradin share a laugh on stage.

Posing a pretty picture, Laura Myers sings a sweet love song.

With a stern expression on his face, Eric Morris prepares to launch into his tongue-twisting solo.

● ACADEMICS

An Integral Part

Whether the quest for knowledge included algebra, geometry or even calculus, many DHS students took the challenge and some even lived to tell about it.

This year's math programs offered a great variety of courses for Deerfield students to choose from. There was everything from freshman algebra to senior calculus for all levels of students.

A hard working mathematics staff lead the way to factoring, simplifying, and proving. In addition to the returning staff, Mrs. Lorenz came in to sponsor the new mathlete program.

As more and more colleges have begun to require extra years of math, many more students have enrolled themselves in the higher math courses. In all, Deerfield students were given a sound background in mathematics to be used for college, the business world and everyday life.

Blinded With . . .

The words "double lab period" usually bring to mind the dreaded fruit flies, spot plates, and wave pools. DHS had several courses from which students could choose. Classes ranged from psychology to earth science to honors chemistry. Biology students studied photosynthesis, cell organization, genetics, and microbes. Chemistry students combined  $\text{Na}^+$  and  $\text{Cl}^-$  and learned about moles (cute, furry, little animals). In the meantime, physics students were attracted to topics of electromagnetism, thermodynamics and astronomy.

The DHS teachers were joined by newcomer David Thiessen. He and the other science teachers spent the year reviewing the science programs. "Re-evaluation of the department's goals, re-organization of the level one program, and even a little redecorating," is in store for the Science department explained Mr. Vince Malek, department chairman.

DHS offered many classes that provided a background in the many different fields of science. These classes gave students an opportunity to learn about the universe, the environment, and themselves.

A Play On Words

The DHS English Department continued to be the place where students challenged their reading, writing, and analyzing skills. Students at all four levels were exposed to classic authors, modern literature, and poetry.

At the freshmen level, students learned about their society through Steinbeck's Of Mice and Men, and about history through Dickens' A Tale of Two Cities. Grammar and spelling also played an important role in freshmen English classes.

The sophomores traveled on the Mediterranean Sea with Odysseus, and read Shakespeare's Othello. For one semester of sophomore year, the students took a speech class and increased their persuasive and public speaking abilities.

The juniors studied books from different historical time periods. For example, students read The Crucible while they studied the Puritans, and read Huckleberry Finn as they studied early America.

The seniors read books by authors of all nationalities. Students read France's The Plague, Russia's Crime and Punishment, and America's The Great Gatsby.

Students increased their analyzing and writing skills while at the same time they increased their appreciation of great authors such as Shakespeare and Steinbeck, all the while preparing themselves for college and beyond.

With An Accent

Due to increased enrollment and students' requests for better studying facilities, the 1984-5 academic year saw the complete remodeling and renovation of the language laboratory.

The language laboratory is a great resource to foreign language students and provides a nice atmosphere for study. Individual cards have been replaced by large, round tables used for group study. However, some individual carrels are still present for those who wish to study individually.

Due to the continuing popularity of the foreign language programs offered at DHS, new teachers were added in both German and French. The first and second year curriculum included vocabulary, grammar, and reading. The third and fourth year curriculum stressed oral comprehension and advanced reading skills, with the goal of fluency upon the conclusion of fourth year studies.

Students were advised to participate in some foreign language during their four years at DHS. And, with the growth in enrollment in the Foreign Language Department, it looks as though this year many students took that advice.

The Way It Was

Social studies provided students with a variety of courses which proved to be stimulating to students' interests in the past, present and the future of society. Every student must complete two semesters of U.S. History with an additional two semesters open for an elective. The choosing can be difficult with such a wide range of classes such as Western Civilization, World Cultures, Political Science, or Economics.

Social studies classes helped to provide students with a better understanding of the world through maps, timelines, and workbook sheets. And, students learned that the ideas and decisions of the past had a tremendous effect on the present. The AP classes of U.S. History and Modern European History even got to read books written by such authors as Sinclair and Voltaire.

In all, social studies at DHS allowed students to explore past, present, and future, as well as letting students come up with their own conclusions. As students head out into the world, the knowledge of human behavior they gained from social studies will surely help.

Test Of Strength

More than just a break in the day, gym classes provided a wide range of recreational activities for students. Because gym is a required class, the department attempted to create a curriculum that was both interesting and exciting.

One of the new additions to this year's program concerned a new testing method after each unit. In order to help the program, a strength test was implemented.

Already there were a wide variety of activities in the curriculum. In the first two years, students participated in many sports and endurance building activities. There was tennis, swimming, aerobics, gymnastics, and many other activities for freshmen and sophomores.

As students became juniors, they were faced with a big choice, regular gym or outdoor education. Outdoor ed. was climbing and rappelling, canoeing and kayaking, and cross country skiing. Regular gym consisted of team sports such as football, basketball, and floor hockey.

Seniors had a multitude of choices. They could sign up for regular gym class, coed classes, or even weightlifting gym. Also, seniors could come in early for earlybird gym in order to be able to leave school before 3:24.

In all, gym was not just another blow off period. Carefull planning resulted in an enjoyable and beneficial year for all the students.

A New Picture

The Fine Arts Department had something for everyone this year. Students could fill their Fine Arts credit with anything from Photography to Art History.

For those with a talent for painting, moulding, or sketching, courses such as Ceramics, Exploring Art, or Drawing were available. Dance was also taken by many students to fill the requirement. Mr. Ritter, the department chairman, even joined Mrs. Myers' 3rd period dance class. Acting class developed an interesting twist in the plot as Mr. Cary Libkin returned to after a year's absence to replace Mr. Joel Johnson.

Another major facet of the Fine Arts Department were the musical organizations. All had successful years and contributed greatly to the department. The Chorus and Orchestra also took trips this year; the Chorus to Florida and the Orchestra to New York City. Both trips were exciting as well as educational. These three activities contrived to be a mixture of challenge and fun.

A new class, Drawing and Painting, taught by Mr. Ritter, was formed. It taught more advanced skills to students and expanded new mediums such as silverpoint, printing, and mixed media. The class is a definite asset to the department and worthwhile if one is interested in learning ways to express oneself through art.

Whatever the choice, the Fine Arts Department allowed students to express their creativity.

Practical Crafts

It was another year of success and change for the Applied Arts Department this year. The Applied Arts Department consists of three major facets; Business Education, Home Economics, and Industrial Education.

In the Business Education section, students learn about some of the responsibilities which go along with managing a business. In Home Economics, students learn how to cook and sew, and other useful domestic skills. And in Industrial Education, students learn mechanical skills such as drafting.

Every DHS student has to fulfill a Consumer Economics requirement. This requirement can be met by either taking an Economics course or taking the class through independent study. This year, for the first time, sophomores were allowed to take Consumer Economics independent study along with the upper classmen.

Applied Arts allowed students to strengthen their mechanical and domestic skills, as well as giving them a taste of the business world.

On The Job

The Lake County Area Vocational Center is a vocational school located in Grayslake. The school offers educational opportunities to DHS students in many vocational skill areas. The students who wish to attend classes there are transported by bus either in the morning or the afternoon.

A wide range of courses are offered at LCAVC. For example, students are given the opportunity to experiment in such diverse classes as Ornamental Horticulture or Environmental Control. Business education is a popular class and is offered to prospective secretaries and computer processors. Students can also learn how to repair automobiles, appliances and electrical equipment.

LCAVC is designed to provide more than an education for its students. Indeed, for many people, LCAVC was a very knowledgeable and rewarding experience.

Guiding Light

This year marked the fifth year of the successful freshman advisory program, under the direction of Edith Miller. The freshman advisory program served many purposes to freshmen, including integrating them into DHS, informing them of important events or procedures, and a place to take state-mandated tests.

Usually the freshmen advisories had activities for two or three days of the week, and had study hall for the rest of the time. The activities included taking tours of the various facilities at DHS, taking tests, and having class discussions following movies on vandalism, failure, and note-taking skills. Freshman advisory also served as a place where students could get counseling about their four-year plans and information about graduation requirements.

Possibly the best function of freshman advisory, for the freshmen at least, was the friendship developed with the senior advisors, who offered advice, support, and friendship to the freshmen.

The friendship which resulted from the daily interaction between the freshmen and seniors was gratifying for both seniors and freshmen.

Freshman advisory was a useful program which exposed freshmen to the available opportunities and activities, and upperclassmen. It served as a great way to integrate freshmen into DHS.

One Step Away

With less than a minute left in the game, and the Warriors down 21-14, quarterback Eric Dahlquist rolled out looking deep for the tying touchdown. Unfortunately, heavy defensive pressure caused a loss of yardage, and the Warriors' hopes for a State Championship were dashed.

Despite the loss, it could not overshadow what was a terrific season. With a final record of 11-2 the Warriors had a strong, and somewhat surprising season.

A dismal day brought a dismal opening to the season. The Warriors got stuck in the mud in a 12-7 loss to Lane Tech. Bouncing back strongly, the Warriors had back to back shut-outs of Evanston and New Trier.

The Warriors continued their winning ways, not losing again in regular season. In the playoffs, the Warriors faced three strong teams en route to the finals. Deerfield shut out a good Collins and a great Warren team. Against Fenton, the number one defense in the state, Deerfield exploded for 43 points. The Warriors finally fell to Peoria-Richwoods, the number 17 team in the nation.

In addition to a great team, two individuals received great honors. Powerful center Vic Renaud made All-State and running back Bill Crawford was elected to the All-Area team.

As future players look back on the 1984 season, they will no doubt see the loss as a disappointment. But, as the little helmet was placed in the runner-up column, one could only remember the hard work of the players and the great season it produced.

A Net Gain

Although the girls' tennis team started their season with low expectations, a strong team feeling and hard work created a very successful season. Coach Geoff Gluck chose 24 girls to represent Deerfield and the season began.

The girls opened the season with two quick wins over Maine East and Evanston. A rain out at the Barrington Invite stunted the team momentarily, but they rebounded with two more wins. On a roll, the tennis warriors took a 6-4 regular season record into Conference.

The girls had high hopes as they entered the tournament. The team felt they had a good chance to qualify for Sectionals and thus be able to make State. Strong showings by Suzanne Gilbert and Michelle Silverman at singles and Karin Mangin and Kathy Whitson and Caroline Franz and Jennie Cohen at doubles brought Deerfield a third place finish and a berth at Sectionals.

Because of this strong showing, the girls went into the meet with high hopes. But the girls finished fourth, just missing a place in the state meet.

All in all, it was an excellent year for girls' tennis. Once again, teamwork and effort prevailed to produce a great season.

In The Long Run

The 1985 Deerfield cross country team started their season off on the right foot. After a great season, the cross country warriors looked forward to a great showing in the post-season tournaments. However, despite high expectations, they did not fare well, placing a disappointing sixth in Sectionals.

Six top returning seniors brought an optimistic outlook into the 1984 season. In order to train for the actual competition, warrior runners ran almost eight miles a day. By interspersing distance practices with speed drills, the team developed the necessary endurance and stamina to compete in the three-mile course.

The hard work paid off quickly and in large proportions. At the first invitational of the year, Proviso West, the warriors sprinted to a second place finish out of seventeen teams.

Moving on through the still young season, the cross country warriors continued their winning ways. The team picked up its first invitational win by taking the Glenbrook South Tournament. Next, the warriors picked up a big win at the Lake County Meet. This great victory was closely followed by another win at Districts.

A great season so far caused the warriors to enter Regionals with high expectations. They were not disappointed as they cruised to a first place finish and their fourth invitational win. Despite such a great season the mortal warriors had an off day at Sectionals and placed a disappointing sixth.

The great success was also due to many good individual efforts. Senior Rod Jette's top time of 15:41 paced him to several victories. Senior Steve Havlick and junior Bob Voisard also won several trophies. Sam Kling had a great year, beating his previous personal best. And, Scott Prais, Scott McArthur, Dan Bruss, and Brad Gassman all compiled good years. Despite a downfall at the finish, the cross country warriors finished on an optimistic note as the team proclaimed, "We'll get them during track!"

Miles With Style

It was definitely the "Year of the Senior" for the girls' cross country team. The varsity team consisted of seven seniors: Lisa Crovetti, Nancy Fowler, Laurie Frein, Kim Malm, Wendy Seiden, Kim Smith, and Missy Staubitz. Sophomore Crissy Noffke served as the team's invaluable alternate runner.

The varsity and junior varsity teams both proved to be tough. Missy Staubitz and Lisa Crovetti led the pack, supported by the strong and consistent performances of Wendy Seiden and Nancy Fowler. The girls had a Conference record of 8-1 on the varsity level, and 3-2 on the jv level. After placing second in the Conference, the girls were ready for the next step; Regionals.

At Regionals, the girls ran the best race of the year, placing third. Now, the real competition began. The team had qualified for Sectionals, the meet that would determine who would be running at the state meet. Although the team was setback by an outbreak of colds, Deerfield still managed to make a good showing. Lisa Crovetti and Kim Smith ran their best races of the entire year, but even this effort was not enough for the team to qualify for the state meet.

Although the girls failed to qualify, they still had a lot to be proud of. The girls will always be able to look back on their running careers filled with memories of good times and close friendships. The 1984 girls' cross country team has left a precedent that will be a tough act to follow.

Just For Kicks

This year's soccer team exhibited marked improvement over last year's squad. With a record of eight wins, nine losses, and two ties, the 1984 team more than doubled last year's mark.

For the first time in DHS history, the team tied Evanston. The Wildkits were ranked first in the state at the time. Also, DHS took two out of three games against cross-district rival Highland Park. The soccer team's wall-line defense and dangerously potent offense combined to create a great year for fans and players alike.

This year, three Deerfield players; Justin Greenberg, Paul Isaacson, and Tom Healy, were elected to the 1984 All Conference team. Although seven Warriors will be graduating, including the entire defensive squad, a strong batch of underclassmen will brighten Coach Van Miller's outlook for next year's team.

Par-Tee Time

The girls' varsity golf team beat the odds with a surprisingly successful year. After all, the team consisted of only six players, half the size of the year before. The team also took on new leadership with the coaching debut of Mr. Ed Fair. Mr. Fair was a very enthusiastic coach and had a great deal of confidence in the team despite its size.

Contrary to all reservations and doubts, the girls' varsity golf team did not decline; rather, the team's standings improved. Their record of six wins and six losses was far better than previous years. This season the girls came in fifth place in the Central

Suburban League meet with Tricia Maxey capturing tenth place as an individual. They then came in third in the state regional meet, and Julie Schotanus received a fifth place medal. Because of this win, the whole team advanced to the state sectionals for the first time ever. There they ended their very successful year. # Victory Swing

From its early romp of Stevenson, to its eighth place finish at the State Tournament, the Varsity Golf team successfully met and vanquished all but three of its opponents. Consistency was perhaps the best descriptive word for the members of the golf team. Most all of them were returning lettermen. The team consistently won all year long. Each loss was a close one, especially the squeaker with Highland Park.

Perhaps the highlight of the season was the victory over New Trier, one of the top-ranked teams in the state! In this hard-fought battle, Dave Fishbein rose to the occasion by shooting a 31 for nine holes.

In the post season play, Deerfield took second in Regionals and Sectionals before finally ranking eighth in the State. Individual successes were achieved by Jeremy Huck, Dave Fishbein, and Brett Packee, who were each named All-Conference.

Golf looks forward to a great upcoming year with many veteran players returning.

Stick It To 'Em

Another excellent field hockey season came to an end in November of 1984. The team's final record was 8-7-0 including a 4th in State.

The varsity team was successful because the members were more than teammates; they were friends too. The team was like a family which helped make some of the more grueling practices more tolerable. For example, on the morning of the last home game, the underclassmen gave flowers to the graduating seniors in remembrance of great friendships and a fine season.

Besides playing well, the team managed to stay healthier during the season than did past teams. Everyone's 100% effort made the practices and games even more worthwhile.

The 1984 team will sorely miss the eight graduating seniors, but there are many ready players to fill their places. As one senior said, "Having seen the others play, I can see that they are tough enough to beat the other teams, as long as they play their game." It was truly a magnificent year for Deerfield field hockey.

A Smashing Season

This year's volleyball season was a smashing success. Although the varsity team had a few bumps to overcome during the 1984 season, they did very well.

The fun started with only three seniors and four returning varsity players on the team. Fortunately, they had several fantastic team players which helped offset the lack of veterans.

The freshmen and junior varsity teams also had a wonderful season. Both demonstrated their skill by achieving first in their conferences. As a result, all three coaches are looking forward to a great 1985 season.

Swimmin' Women

The 1984 girls' swim team was the best team ever for Deerfield. They came in a surprising fourth place at State. For the first time ever, the girls were conference champions. This year's captains, Marilyn Merkle and Amy Melendy, led the team through victory after victory.

Individually, the girls did very well. The state meet was where they displayed their talents. Jennifer Carani, a sophomore, placed second in the 500 freestyle and third in the 200 freestyle. Kris Yaukey placed fifth in the 100 backstroke. Heather Hageman, a freshman, took third in the 50 freestyle.

The most outstanding event of the entire meet was the 400 freestyle relay, won by Deerfield. Freshman Heather Hageman and Sophomores Julie Bayer, Kris Yaukey, and Jennifer Carani made up the team. Also going downstate were Marilyn Merkle, Amy Melendy, Betsy Paletti, Hilary Hageman, Kathy Frerichs, Amy Hunt, and Cheryl Cavaness.

The divers had a great season also. Divers Karen Carver, Andrea Goldbaum, and Suzy Odom did a fine job.

This year, the coaches, Sheri Meyer and Art Edstrom selected for most valuable, Jennifer Carani, most improved, Amy Hunt, most spirited, Kris Yaukey, and the freshman that put up with the most, Heather Hageman.

The entire swim team made a great effort to make this the best and most profitable season ever. This year for the first time they did relaxation, aerobics, and weights along with swimming.

Evidently, these new additions paid off, for they had a wonderful season. In all, it was an enjoyable combination of hard work and good timing.

On The Rebound

The girls' basketball team may not have exactly thundered down the court, but they got a lot farther than most expected. "Improvement" and down-right "surprise" were the catchwords of the 1984-85 team, as they finished the season with a fine 16-8 record.

The outlook appeared gloomy as the Warriors expected a slow start. These fears were realized as the team did begin the season with a 0-3 record in conference. But the team bounced back with a vengeance and finished 6-4.

Hopes began to fly as Coach Dickman and the team hosted two tournaments here at DHS. The Warrior Roundup corralled Stevenson, Grayslake, and Round Lake. The Mistletoe Tournament was equally successful as Deerfield trounced Lake Forest and Carmel, plus a heartstopping victory over Addison Trail (19-3) by a two point margin at the buzzer. But two of the most memorable victories were over state-ranked Marillac by a score of 76-52, and a double-overtime victory against Highland Park.

The Warriors finished the season strongly with a 44 point blowout of Waukegan East. With their victories, the girls stormed into the playoffs only to be stopped, barely, by a terrific Glenbrook North team.

Senior co-captains Julie Buccola and Kathy Whitson had much to look back on this year. Buccola was one of the team's leading scorers. Another powerhouse on the court was Kate Poland with a school record 13 blocks in one game. Furthermore, sophomores Jenny Shaw and Jenny Casey performed impressively. But every player meshed to make the group a team which has every reason to look back on the season with pride and look forward to next year's season with great expectations.

Rebels Whale!

For the 1984-85 boys' swim team, the past season will really be something to look back on and smile about. First, there was the undefeated conference season (5-0). This year, more than any other year, there was also a much stronger feeling of togetherness. Victory, however, proved once more to be the best part of the year.

As mentioned before, the team was undefeated, due to the depth that consistently earned Deerfield the 2nds and 3rds that they needed. "The guys always did what they had to do, whenever they had to do it," said Coach Edstrom. The team, after finishing 5-0, went on to the six team conference meet, where they actually had a shot at winning it. Although they only had two first places in the whole meet, Deerfield drowned the other teams by 60+ points. When the meet had ended, Coach Edstrom was "accidentally" dropped into the water to take his first swim of the season. The next week were Districts, where the Warriors sent Brad Klein, Scott Vasey, Peter Redondo, and Terry Lamarre downstate in the 200 medley relay. Darrill Andries and the four others all just missed going downstate in their individual events.

The JV, under the direction of rookie head coach Barry Bolek, also finished nicely. They had a great dual meet year, and went on to be co-champions in their conference. Jeff Torosian, Dan Gutknecht, Bob Fuhrmann, and others proved to be very valuable to the team.

Last, there were the freshmen under the direction of Fred Harris. Very few of the freshmen had ever been in the water, yet they stuck with it and went on to take 3rd in their conference meet.

The 1984-85 season was the most successful for the DHS swim team in the last ten years. Special thanks to Brad Klein, Terry LaMarre, and Darrill Andries for their cheers and performances fitting to the captains of the 1984-85 Rebels Swim Team.

Pressing Forward

Evolution characterized this year's varsity basketball team. After a shaky beginning, the Warriors gradually became a successful, tightly-knit group of players.

As frequently happened in past years, many of the players also participated on our state runner-up football team. This resulted in the disunity early in the season. Despite this, the fighting Warriors still captured second place in the Glenbrook South Tournament. By the holiday season, the team was geared for success. In a tough Hardwood Classic Tournament, the Warriors took fourth place, as well as winning their first two conference games.

The players on this year's team were characterized by their love for a good time and their cohesion as a group. Juniors and seniors coexisted harmoniously on the court. Gary Friedman, co-captain, led the team from the point-guard position. Dave Lindgren, the Warrior's other captain, dominated the boards along with Eric Dahlquist, Ron Abrams, and Bill Leslie. Packy Jones and Pete Sandgren provided their effective long-range bombing from the outside. In addition to Friedman, Tyler Schimanski and Billy Kerstein proved to be catalysts in running the offense.

By season's end, the Warriors had peaked. A late season overtime loss to state-ranked Weber proved the team was ready for state competition. In the opening game, the Warriors emerged victorious against Lake Forest.

Success Pinned

Hard work, dedication, and intensity paid off once again for the Warrior wrestlers. This year's team improved steadily throughout the season. It was a tough tournament team because of experienced seniors, although inexperience hindered several close dual meets.

The season was peppered with individual and team awards. The team finished second out of sixteen teams in the Lake County Tournament and captured the Lake Forest Tournament Crown. Joe Kartheiser, Bill Crawford, Paul Chen, and Joe

The freshmen will play a major role as they have numerous strong individuals. Coach Mueller's sophomores, who were outstanding, ran their record to 10-1, and will be top contenders next season at the varsity level. Overall, it was a successful season ending with a 10-7 record, and it also gave experience to the up and coming wrestlers and Deerfield High School.

Bar-Tenders

The 1984-85 gymnastics team set their pre-season goal to finish first in their conference. The young team fulfilled this goal, plus many other set during the season.

The first of these was winning the Lake County Invitational. Gymnasts Maureen Roemer, Sandy Glaser, Elizabeth Lombardo, and Elyse Cohen all performed strongly to achieve this title. Each team member contributed in helping accomplish the team's next big victory, the Conant Invitational.

At Conant, the gymnasts defeated thirteen teams for this first place finish. Individual event performances from Gail Piersen and Shelly Coleman (vault), Colleen Brantman (beam), and Rhonda Gernady (floor), added significantly to the team's winning score.

The most notable victory was the Conference Title. The gymnasts met their season goal by winning this Conference meet and producing many top placers. Individual spots included Maureen Romer, 1st on bars (9.05) and 2nd on beam (8.7); Elyse Cohen, 2nd on floor (8.9) and 5th all-around; Sandy Glaser, 4th on bars (8.55) and 5th vault (8.7) and all-around; and Elizabeth Lombardo, 5th on floor.

This impressive victory at the Conference Championships set the stage for a trip to Regionals, the first since 1982. At Regionals, the team put in a strong performance with which they placed third.

The gymnasts had a very fulfilling season, and can only anticipate a stronger team next year. They do not suffer any senior loss, so the gymnasts know that the best is yet to come!

Steel On Ice

The Warrior's Varsity Hockey Team looked very promising for the coming year in tryouts. The team showed much more talent than had been seen in previous years. Despite the high cost of playing hockey at DHS, ice time is so expensive, many tried out for this year's team. The talent was finally put together in the right combination and proved to be a very fine hockey team by the end of the year.

Although the Warriors finished their regular season in last place of the Metropolitan North Division Hockey League, they showed their will for winning in the playoffs. The Warrior icemen prided themselves on never giving up. The Warriors earned for themselves an image of resiliency and come-backs.

When the Chicago Metropolitan Hockey Founder's Cup playoffs rolled around, the Warriors were ready. They won the North Division, and after defeating the Central and Northwest Divisions, they came in second in the Chicago area Metro Finals.

The Warriors continued to skate to victories in the AA State Tournament. They finished second in the state of Illinois.

The hockey players would like to thank the support of many loyal fans who travelled to games up to 30 minutes away, and hope they continue to give their support in the future.

● CLUBS

A Mesh Of Minds

Each year, juniors who have proved excellence in their first two years of Spanish are honored by being inducted into the Spanish Honor Society. The Spanish Honor Society promoted interest in Spanish as a language, and in the Latin American culture for all of the students.

This year, the society held a churros sale for all the Spanish classes. In addition, there was a Christmas party for all of the members. Finally, the fourth year members gave their peers from Benito Juarez High School a tour of DHS in return for an earlier tour of Juarez.

Demonstrating Deerfield High School's superior skill-developing techniques, fifty-two seniors qualified for the National Honor Society this year. A special committee reviewed applicants for the Society, and decisions were based on participation in school activities, community projects, and their academic record.

A formal induction ceremony took place in November, and included the reciting of the pledge, songs by the madrigal singers, and an inspiring speech by Mrs. Miller.

Members of the National Honor Society considered their participation in the club as a great honor and motivation for the future. Also, it provided a chance for a possible college scholarship. Two students from the society were selected for a chance at a national scholarship. This year's lucky seniors were James Kirby and Sandra McBride.

Both of the honor societies helped to recognize the academic excellence of their select members.

Leading The Way

This was the year for Student Council to try new things. It began in the summer with the arrival of our new principal, Dr. Woodward. Through Dr. Woodward, council officers got the opportunity to attend a leadership workshop at the Student Leadership Institute in Bloomington, Indiana. The week long workshop at Indiana University enabled these officers to learn new ideas and skills.

The year started off great with council running the Freshman Fun Nite in August, where over 300 students attended. The idea of a video dance sounded fun and turned out to be highly successful with the highest turnout for an informal dance in the past five years. Student Council also ran Homecoming and the "Warrior Games '84" idea sparked enthusiasm for all fall sports. All the hard work made Homecoming '84 a memorable weekend.

This year council also focused on other aspects which would benefit the school and restructured the council to include a governance chairperson to deal with school problems. Student Council had a busy year and a hectic schedule towards the middle of the year. But, as usual, the spring blood drive and school chest went very well.

This year's Student Council was enthusiastic and hard-working. The members paved the way for future student councils by trying new ideas and working to increase student involvement in the school.

When people look at school, they look to see what's new. This year brought back the Distributive Education Program after a years absence. D.E. is a business internship where students go to school for part of the day and then work at their jobs in the afternoon.

This year the club had one of it's largest numbers of members in all of the years of its existence. Even though eighteen of them were seniors and the rest were juniors, the club worked together to excel in competition.

Another program at DHS is the Inter-related Occupations program. This deals with supervised work experience combined with a related class.

All in all, the Distributive Education Club had an incredibly successful and profitable year. The training the students who were active in the club received will definitely be an asset.

Ramble On

Speaking of success, all of the speech teams at Deerfield enjoyed a tremendous 1984-85 season. In Forensics, Model United Nations, and Student Congress, Deerfield triumphed over its competition.

The Forensics team consisted of prose readers, orators, and comedians. The team broke a school record when four team members qualified for the State Tournament, and the team as a whole received six first place wins. Team members realized that the awards they received were nothing compared to the camaraderie of the team.

Model United Nations also set a few new precedents. On December 5-9, the team trekked off to the wilds of Boston for the Harvard conference. Representing Pakistan, both Denise Ambre and Audris Wong received special recognition. The conference was for many a time of challenge and discovery, and will be remembered for some time.

Student Congress also did very well this year. Through debating bills and discussing major issues, Deerfield gained a great deal of recognition and never failed to bring back several individual awards. Mrs. Miller led a strong team which attracted people with many different interests.

In the history of Deerfield, this was a truly exceptional year. All the speech teams broke records and have every reason to hope for an even more outstanding season in the future.

Count On It

A new academic organization, math club, was integrated into already full rostrum of extra-curricular activities. Sponsored by Ms. Lorenz, the dedicated mathletes met during the week to perfect their skills.

Math club had many plusses. Anyone could have the opportunity to improve their mathematical skills. Math club also functioned as a way of learning to work with other people as a team. All in all, Math club added up to a lot of fun.

3,2,1, Contact! One could imagine that these words were spoken as DASA launched each rocket. DASA, which stands for Deerfield Aerospace Association, was a club which launched and designed model rockets. This year was definitely a year of upward mobility.

After its second year of existence, the High Tech Club was still going strong. Led by sponsor Vance Huntsinger, the club was made up of students who were interested in operating ham radios and in computer programming. With the new developments in computers and communications, it is certain that this club will gain more popularity in the future.

Scenic Route

1985 brought a year of new rules and organizations. One of these organizations was Art Club. Founded by department chairman Dave Ritter and teacher Ann Slavick, the fledgling Art Club designed a mural for the area between the photo room and art officers, honored Youth Art Month, and took several field trips to the art institutes. Art Club also was responsible for painting windows across from the auditorium.

It was another great year for Outdoor Education. The group sponsored many trips this year, including camping, canoeing, and rapelling. Probably the most popular activities were the ski trips to Majestic, Devil's Head, and Cascade. The success of these trips made it a great year for the Outdoor Education Club.

Magic Melody

In long red and white choral robes, the largest choir at DHS, A Capella, performed melodies without accompaniment. A Capella met every day during sixth period.

The chorus did a lot of traveling this year. They performed at Baxter Travenol, the Unitarian Church, and the Museum of Science and Industry. Also, in the spring, A Capella travelled to Six Flags at St. Louis for a special performance.

A Capella once again performed up to its high standards.

The freshman choir, Chorus 1,2, had a great year. This introductory choir, consisted of all girls, made strong performances at the ice cream social and the Holiday Concert. The quality of this year's Chorus 1,2 showed promise for the future.

Perfect Harmony

The Deerfield High School Madrigal Singers were Deerfield's answer to the Renaissance. Clothed in costumes reminiscent of the era, this elite group of singers created a variety of sixteenth century pieces.

Armed with only a Pitch pipe and their voices, the Madrigals sang numerous ballads in Italian, German, Latin, and English. The Madrigals were good enough to sing in the executive dining room at Baxter Travenol, an honor no other choral group had. Also, they went caroling at Northbrook Court during Christmas Vacation.

Once again, the Madrigals kept the Renaissance alive at DHS.

With perfect harmony, the Treble Choir burst into the new year. The six girls were chosen for their perfect musical blend. Under the direction of student-director Sue Devendorf, the choir practiced in the mornings one to two times a week. At Baxter Travenol, the ice cream social, and the Christmas Show, the Treble Choir displayed its beautiful harmony for all to hear and enjoy.

Songs Of Success

They invaded at six o'clock in the morning. Senior Choraliers congratulated the pajama-clad '84-85 Choraliers, bound and blindfolded them, and forcibly took them to breakfast.

Travelling extensively throughout the Chicagoland area, the DHS Choraliers have achieved a widespread reputation for excellence. Performing a variety of popular numbers ranging from the 1950's to the present, the swing choir was loaded with public appeal.

Throughout the year, the Choraliers maintained an excellent sense of ensemble. Expertise at all levels helped the 1984-85 Choraliers exhibit a true sense of professionalism.

While the Choraliers exhibited expertise, the Advanced Chorus was a learning process. One step below A Cappella, the Advanced Chorus constantly practiced to prepare its members for the travelling choruses. An excellent crop of young singers indicated great future success.

Rehearsing in the chorus room, the choraliers take time out to try to touch the ceiling.

High Strung

The orchestra, directed by Charles Emmons, has had a successful year. This musical group fervently combined with Highland Park's orchestra to perform in concert. Among these occasions, were a Halloween Concert, a Winter Halloween, Focus on Fine Arts at H.P.H.S., and a Spring Concert.

The highlight of this year for orchestra members was their trip to New York City over spring break. It was a great, fulfilled experience. It can be honestly said that it was an eventful and exciting year for the entire orchestra.

Hot Off The Press

Education-experience-fun-people-creativity — that's what Deerprints and Troubadour were all about! Being a member of these staffs exposed the student to the charm, intelligence, and wit that people were capable of. The fruits of their labors allow everyone to voice their opinions, publicize their accomplishments, and vent their emotions. Both were institutions that were inextricably entwined with the student body.

Within its oversize pages, Deerprints covered many aspects of the high school in the various sections of news, sports, features, student life, and editorials. Following a fairly rigid schedule, the staff was able to produce a fine newspaper. A great deal of effort was involved as articles were too long or too short or headlines and pictures were lost. Despite the hard work under James Kirby, it was still extremely rewarding to produce this work of art.

Troubadour took art very seriously while still retaining a sense of humor. This literary and art magazine was the result of many hours of work and dedication. The main purpose of Troubadour was to give the DHS students a chance to demonstrate their artistic abilities. Much time was spent choosing the submissions to go into the magazine in order to create a book appealing to all of DHS.

Both clubs' mentors, Mr. Horton of Deerprints, and Mrs. Sevens of Troubadour, should feel especially proud of this year's staff for the quality of the work produced.

Q: Who Are We? A: We Are O*Yad!

"Hi Pete! How's it going? We'll only be here for an hour or so more." Yes, this year the yearbook staff came to know Pete, the night janitor, very well. As deadlines approached, the staff of O*YAD would shuffle into the sanctuary of F-104 to whip off layouts, copy, and captions like they were going out of style.

When the staff took over this year, no one knew what to expect. Rare circumstances brought out a staff comprised almost entirely of rookies. However, a trip to a workshop at Ball State University gave the editors the knowledge they needed to set the wheels in motion.

The new knowledge caused the editors to make some staff changes and set new goals. They hoped to improve the mechanics of the book over the past years by utilizing new and more modern techniques.

With these ideals in mind, they boldly entered the year and headed for our first deadline. Only eight pages long, it did not prepare us for the onslaught to follow.

Our next deadline was sixty pages worth of fun. In this time, we had to compile all the class pictures pages. Cries of "Who knows this kid?" and "What's a freshman doing in the junior pile?" constantly shattered the silence of F-104.

Instead of getting easier, each deadline appeared to get harder and harder. We were always waiting for something; an article, a team picture, scoreboards. The nights preceeding deadlines kept us at school until 9:00.

As the number of deadlines became smaller, we were able to look back on the year and record our achievements. The staff had made friends with all the night janitors. We had familiarized ourselves with such terminology as "the magic wheel," the cropper, and Hackle-day. And, our after school snacking helped bring large parties to Tony's Subs and Convenient.

Although the work was tough, the staff had many creative ways to break up the monotony. During December, a plate of Christmas cookies was supplied by Mr. Knudson. Then, there was wheelchair basketball on the nerf hoop in F-104. Finally, we worked to the Doors, Led Zepplin, Yes, and other rock greats.

The values and abilities gained during the year would surely help us in the future. We would only hope that we had made a mark on the school by our efforts that others would want to copy.

Active Athletes

GIMA, Girl's Interscholastic Intramural Association, and Deerfield Guard are two organizations which took part in many major events of our school this year.

The major role of GIMA was to put on the "Turnabout Dance" by supplying a band, decorations, and momentos for the couples to take home with them. GIMA also made all of the locker recognitions for Homecoming '84, and put on a square dance to relieve the stress of finals. Another important function of GIMA was to set the budget and distribute money to the dance and gymnastics clubs. These were the major services which the GIMA Board provided for the students of DHS this year.

The Deerfield Guard, an organization characterized by its devotion to the community, had an active and exciting school year. Over Homecoming weekend, Guard members participated in the Homecoming parade, and was seen on yet another intricately constructed float. The Guard also judged for the Homecoming Window Contest, an integral part of Warrior Games '84.

Saturday Morning Swim School, almost a legend in its own time, was another success due to the enthusiasm and dedication of the new and former Guard members. Whether it was dealing with screaming kids or teaching basic concepts in life-saving, the Guard members created a dynamic program for all of the young swimmers.

Modern Moves

The DHS Dance Club has had another successful year. After having auditions in October, the Dance Club began having clinics several times a week. These clinics were held openly, so anyone who was interested in dance could participate.

In mid-November, dances for the annual show were chosen and extensive rehearsals began.

Another highlight of the year was the Dance Club's participation in Focus at H.P.H.S., which was a fun experience.

All in all, this year has been a busy and productive one for the Dance Club.

Anyone passing by the girls' gym could see members of the gym Club flipping and twisting through the air. The gymnasts, under the leadership of Carol Myers, spent the first two months of the school year busily preparing for the show.

Practices often extended into the later hours of the night. However, all the hard work paid off with a really great show.

Once again, the Gymnastics Club proved to be a great organization for aspiring gymnasts.

Cheers!

As a result of the success that the cheerleaders had at camp, it was obvious that the year would be a great one. Although the DHS varsity squad did not advance to the national finals, it was a great honor to be one of the five best squads.

The excitement continued as the varsity squad cheered the football team to victory after victory reaching our dream of going downstate. The dedication was evident as the cheerleaders were once found cheering in pouring rain. This, however, did not lessen their spirit.

The true test came when football season overlapped with basketball. Towards the end of November, the cheerleaders woke up early to attend a football game which was followed within hours by a b-ball game.

The freshman and sophomore squads had a good year as well. In general, the squads had a great year continuing the traditions of Deerfield cheerleading.

Halftime Kicks

This year's pompon squad of 16 girls helped boost spirits at both the football and basketball games. The squad started last summer practicing and making routines for their annual camp. All their hard work paid off, and they brought home a first place trophy for the best original routine.

Before each football game, they used their originality to create a new routine to accompany the band's music. The highlight of the season was Homecoming Weekend, when the squad performed routines such as the traditional "Stripper." The squad continued their support of DHS when they accompanied the football team to the playoffs and state championship. "Performing at Dyche Stadium was a once in a lifetime experience," said Linda Slavin.

When the basketball season began, PomPon continued to boost the crowd's spirits. They made up new routines for each game, choosing music from pop songs.

As an extra bonus, before each game, the squad was invited to a member's home for breakfast or dinner. Despite all the hard work, including 7:30 a.m. practices, the 16 girls kept their bright smiles throughout the season.

Seniors Slump

"A paper due on Monday?! A test tomorrow?! Wait a minute! I'm a senior! I don't have to do homework!" With these words, a senior showed the first symptoms of senior slump. Senior slump can be defined as, "the period of time in which a senior in high school becomes bored with school and decides to do other things besides homework."

And this year's seniors had chronic cases of the disease. After school, seniors could be seen doing everything except homework. One might easily catch seniors in Northbrook Court or Deerfield Commons. After the final bell went off, many seniors went to extra-curriculars or athletics. A lot went out and got jobs. Finally, a few seniors just curled up at home in front of the TV or took a nap. Seniors had a fun senior year, but hoped they would be able to recover their good habits before college.

Remember . . .

As Freshmen,

forgetting your locker combination being picked on by upperclassmen walking into the wrong classroom Freshman Advisory
the first homecoming
our first trip to Dyche Stadium wishing we weren't freshmen

As Sophomores,

the first day on the range giggling through sex education the first time you spoke in front of a speech class
all your friends being able to drive before you
the humiliation of acting out Shakespeare in front of the entire school
wishing we were upperclassmen

As Juniors,

PSATs, ACTs, SATs
the term paper
driving to homecoming driving everywhere
being cheated out of the spirit jug stealing the spirit jug almost winning powder puff junior prom
wishing we were seniors

As Seniors,

the pain of self-scheduling trying to get out of study halls and succeeding walking through the halls like we owned the school
winning the spirit jug bragging about our football team to other schools
our last trip to Dyche Stadium sending in your first application waiting for the first reply leaving school after 8th period early bird gym
having The Plague
sitting through Hamlet, the movie not having to take finals in June having senior slump in October senior prom
walking down the aisle at graduation the pride of hearing your name called the pride of hearing your friends' names called long good-byes
not wanting to leave . . . ever

With thumbs up and faces painted, Brad Weisbond and Scott Goldman show their Class of '85 spirit.

College Bored

Acronyms jumped out at you constantly; PSAT, ACT, SAT. Junior year was definitely the year of the scantron sheet. As juniors lined up to take the tests, visions of college were not too far off.

At the tests, students battled analogies, algebra, and vocabulary tests, not to mention boring reading passages in science and social studies. Also, juniors worried about their scores. There were many smiles and frowns as some students received what they needed, and others didn't. The pressure of the college boards made a very trying year.

Grabbing an SAT application form, Andreyana Barnett begins the first step toward college.

You Wanna Drive?

"Mr. Adams, are the blue slips in yet?" This question was heard everyday at the end of each semester when the Traffic Safety classes came to an end.

Driver's education was a class that most sophomores and a few unlucky juniors looked forward to. Beside those cold days on the range and the long classroom lectures, the thought of one day being alone behind the wheel kept the students' enthusiasm up.

The nervousness that most students felt, soon dwindled away after a few road lessons. And, when that day finally arrived, the streets were full of happy, new drivers.

Sophomore Chores

After surviving freshman year, sophomore year was underway before we knew it. Instead of Freshman Advisory, boring study halls with militaristic teachers filled free periods. Traffic Safety was the best class we had to take. It was neat to finally sit behind the wheel of a car. Finally, Health fulfilled the last of the requirements. One could always hear the giggles coming out of G-106 during sex education. In all, it was great not to be freshman, but even better to look forward to becoming an upperclassman.

Giving speeches was a fundamental part of sophomore year, as speech was a required class.

Frustrated Frosh

The fall of 1984 held extra excitement for Deerfield High School's incoming freshmen. What would life be like at DHS? How would we ever learn our way around? Could we get from B-hall to Q-hall in five minutes.

Upper Classmen — who were they? How would we meet all the other freshmen? All this in just one year — impossible! But as we moved on to sophomore year, we discovered that we were now veterans looking for four awesome years at DHS.

With confusion on their faces, three freshmen are dying to find Q-106.

A Frosh Start

One program that was unique only to freshmen was the Freshman Advisory class. It really helped to answer a lot of questions and erased many doubts. In this class, freshmen really learned a lot about DHS. One important project that freshmen did in this class was to make four year plans. The freshmen had to make some tough decisions regarding classes they would take in their four years.

Also, freshmen were able to see exciting movies on note-taking and even take TAP tests. In all, Freshman Advisory helped to give freshmen a good head start.

With a bored look on his face, Derek Simon shows how much he likes Freshman Advisory.

Principal John Woodward

After the retirement of Mr. Repsholdt the previous year, the search went out for a new principal. In Springfield, Ohio, a replacement was found.

Upon his arrival at Deerfield, Dr. John Woodward made many new and exciting changes. Immediately, Dr. Woodward set up a series of school forums in which students were able to voice questions and opinions about school policies. Also, he instituted a birthday recognition program to create a more personal relationship with his students. Finally, and most importantly, Dr. Woodward introduced a series of leadership workshops open to all students. These over-nighters were designed to get students involved and make them think more positively about themselves and the school. Despite these successes, Dr. Woodward had assured us that this is only the beginning . . .

Memories are made up of francions of minutes, hours, and days,
Every day holds precious memories of old and new,
Memories that are held precious are few,
Memories embroidered in your heart!

Take time and remember what you wanted to be!
-M. Proffitt

Colophon

The 1700 copies of the 1985 O'YAD were printed by Jostens American Yearbook Company in Topeka, Kansas. Body copy was printed in 10 point Souvenir type set 10 on 12. Captions were in 8 point Souvenir type. Headlines were in 36 point Souvenir Bold type. The cover was a true-life, four color lithograph with a clear U.V. covering. Our endsheets were printed on 65 lb. Parchmatte with black type. Pages were printed on 80 lb. glossy enamel paper.

Most of the film processing was done by Schmitt Studios of Oak Park.

The O'YAD staff would like to thank the following people for contributing photographs: Ralph Asher, Vance Huntsinger, Mr. Stanley Rosenthal, Alisa Crovetti.

Many other people made important contributions to our efforts. We would like to thank Mrs. Mihael, Mrs. Tazioli, Mrs. Benson, Mr. Dickman, and Mrs. Neilson. Also a special thanks to Ball State University Yearbook Workshop Director H.L. Hall and teachers, Dr. John Beale and Mrs. Wilma Taylor. Two people who were indispensable were Schmitt Studio photographer

Roy Flieth and Jostens yearbook representative Mike Hackleman. Thanks to late night custodian Pete Mazza for opening doors for us, and to our teachers for giving us breaks when we needed them. Finally, a very special thanks to Ray Knudson, our advisor, for guiding us, assisting us, and putting up with our crazy antics.

COVER: The photograph of a sunrise over Lake Michigan was taken by Eugene Garcia with a 300 mm tele-lens.
