How It Really Began

The day was August 30. The year was 1994. The time was 8:20 a.m. The dull echo of the bell rang through every hall in the school. Students were everywhere, some staring at each other in open-mouthed horror, and others happy to see their friends after a long two months apart. Their summers were ending, and they were entrapped in the airless, lifeless corridors of DHS after having been outside in the sweet summer air. Their shocked faces wondered, "Why am I here?" and "Where have I just been?" No matter where they had just come from, all 1202 Deerfield students: freshmen, sophomores, juniors, and seniors were heading into the same place.

When I decided to try out for Tumblers three years ago, my motive was to do something Everyone worked hard and the show was wonderful.

Deerfield, who said it wasn't the most happening place to be? What did other places have that we didn't? There were so many things to do here. You could go bowling...hang out at Baker's Square...you could even...well, who to sit next to your friends. Or, at the bowling alley you could see what a tailgating party might look like in the Junior lot. Truthfully, this makes it sound a little better than it actually was. Some nights were spent hanging out at a friend's house watching T.V.

But, these few boring nights meant nothing in the long run because there were soooooo many fun things to do on all of the other nights. Deerfield definitely was the place to be.

This survey was completed by the O*YAD staff. It was a population sample of the Deerfield High School student body. The margin of error for this type of survey is +/- 5%. The survey was distributed in English classes at all grade levels. The survey was conducted anonymously and was optional. The percent of students in each grade who responded are as follows: Freshmen - 44%, Sophomores - 50%, Juniors - 60%, Seniors - 45%. These figures represent the total percentage of students completing a survey, but not every question was completed on the surveys that were tallied.

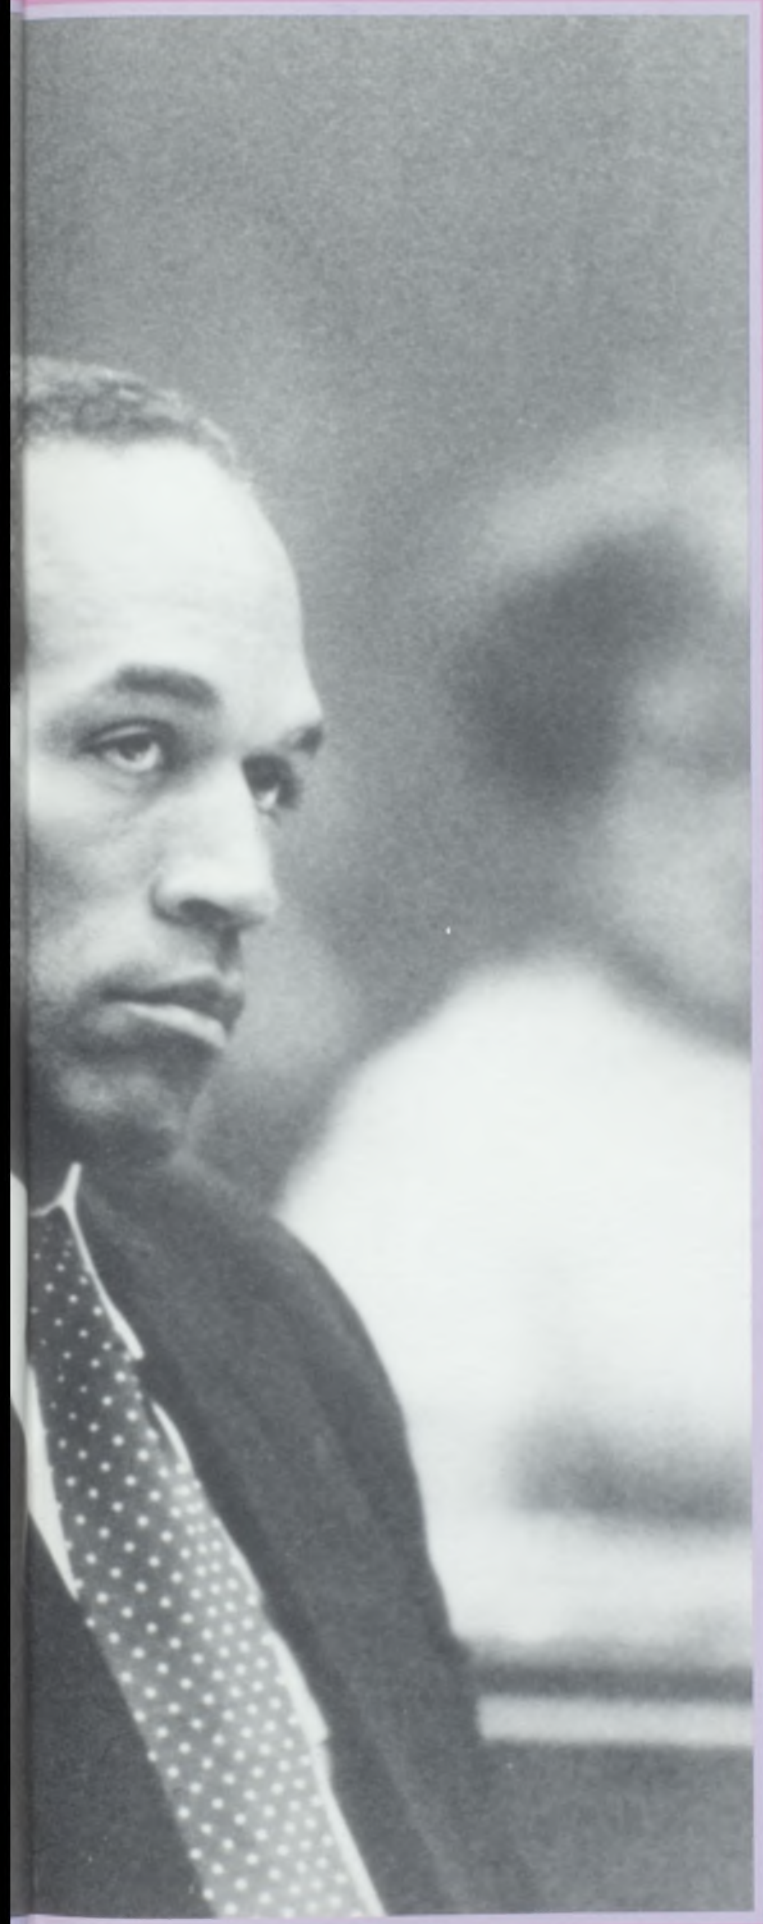

It is referred to as the trial of the century. Football hero O.J. Simpson is accused of killing his ex-wife, Nicole Brown, and her friend, Ronald Goldman. After 46 years as enemies, Israel and Jordan made peace and, hopefully, ended the threat of another war between the Jewish state and its Arab neighbor. With President Bill Clinton presiding at a White House Middle-East peace ceremony, Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and King Hussein of Jordan met in public for the first time, shook hands, and signed the "Washington Declaration" that announced the end of war between these two countries. The baseball season ended early in 1994. The players went on strike in August and a month later the owners voted to cancel the remainder of the regular season, including the playoffs and the World Series. It was the first time since 1904 that the World Series, which had survived world wars and an earthquake since it began in 1903, was not played. In Deerfield there were many disappointed Cubs and White Sox fans. However, in early April an agreement was reached and the players began to play ball again. Although a referendum for independence from Yugoslavia was passed in 1992, war and desperation continued in Bosnia-Herzegovina. Ethnic Serbs massacred thousands of Bosnians, mostly civilians. In 1993, Bosnian Serbs, Muslims, and Croats agreed in principle to partition the country into autonomous ethnic regions. Nonetheless, the fighting continued through 1994 and 1995. Wars, like these, make Deerfield students realize how lucky they are to live in such a safe and healthy environment. (above) Photo from RM Photo Service, Inc.

TO OPEN THEIR MINDS

It was early on a Wednesday morning. As tired as you were at 6:30 a.m. when your alarm went off, you hopped out of bed, excited for your upcoming field trip. Where were you going today? To a museum? A play? A convention? Maybe to Dallas or Harvard? Regardless of where you went, a fun-filled day away from school was always more than welcome.

The places that people went on field trips varied greatly. "We went to Dallas for a yearbook convention," said Senior Tracie Loring,

Said Senior Ally Holleb, "On an Adventures of the Mind field trip to the hospital, Senior Erich Mann fainted (along with two other Deerfield students) and split open his chin. They had to wheel him across the hall to get stitches." Even though this student experienced personal injury on a field trip, most people found their trips to be both educational and enjoyable.

DEALING WITH THE PRESSURE

Deadlines. Tests. Applications. Acceptances. Rejections. Pressure!! When junior year rolled around, students suddenly felt the strain of preparing themselves to leave the familiar surroundings of DHS. Students spent many Saturday mornings in the cafeteria, armed with number two pencils, ready to take the ever important ACTs and SATs. As soon as these were completed, students looked forward to the countless hours that they would spend in the CCRC.

The CCRC was an integral part of the lives of everyone who was deciding where to go to college. Day in and day out, juniors and seniors could be found milling around the College Career Resource Center checking out the possibilities for post-high school life. According to Senior Brad Simon in early January, "I would not be going to the college I am going to today without the CCRC." In response, Senior Adam Kauffman said, "He hasn't gotten into college yet."

DHS's Top Five Ways to Cheat

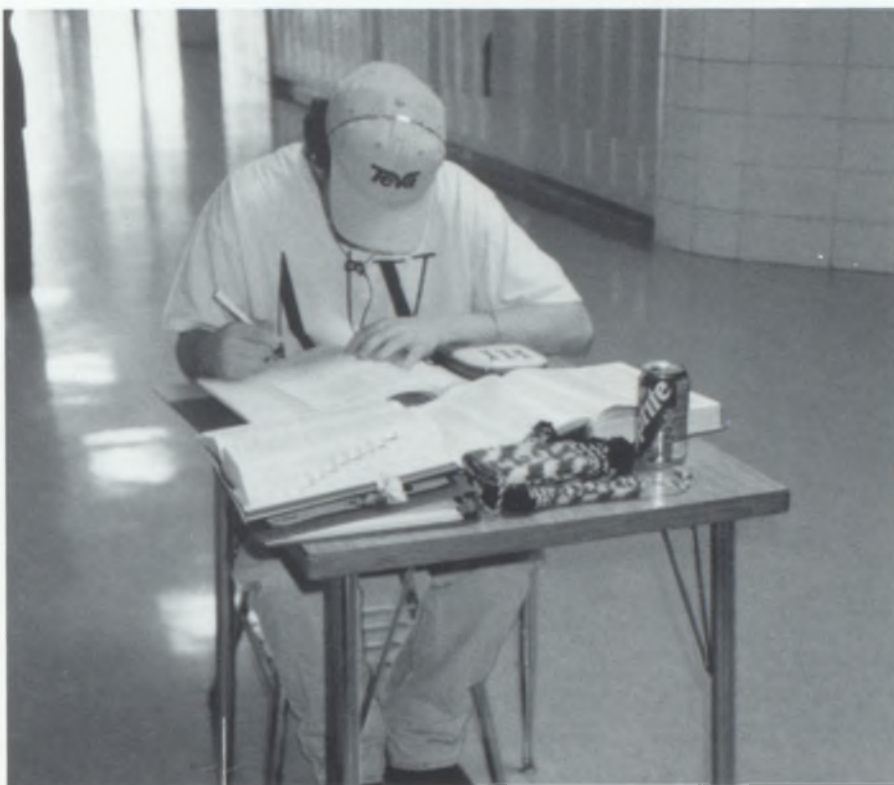

1. Everything goes in the graphing calculator.
2. Store it in your graphing calculator.
3. The TI-81,82, or 85 -- it's your choice!
4. The graphing calculator, enough said!
5. We're first class, we don't cheat!!

Brainstorming in the WERCS, Freshman Ali Cohen is thrilled that she prepared for her test last night. Freshmen find that there is a huge change from the tests that they take in junior high to the much more challenging ones that they take here. (left) Photo by Nancy Ziemba.

Sporting a walkman, Junior Eric Boxer makes himself at home in E-hall to make up an open book test. Since DHS does not have an official test make-up center, it is not uncommon to see a hallway scattered with test takers. (below) Photo by Nancy Ziemba.

WHY STUDY WHEN

WE CAN CHEAT?

It was the weekend before finals, and you still had to study for three tests. What were you going to do?

One thing that popped into your mind was to think of some brilliant way to cheat. You wondered if you should fold up the cheat-sheet and put it in the calculator pocket underneath the instruction booklet. Or should you write the answers on the bottom of your shoes? Maybe gluing the answers under the brim of your hat would work well. If worse came to worst, you knew that you could always fall back on your trusty graphing calculator.

But, all of a sudden, you had a sinking feeling in the pit of your stomach. You knew that this behavior was wrong. You tore up your cheat sheet and sat down to study.

Sixteen hours later, you still had not slept. Even without sleep, you were confident that you would do well on the dreaded finals. You had studied for hours and you were ready to ace your tests. Said Freshman Megan Edelson, "In this 'First Class' environment, students should not cheat." And cheat they did not, as finals came and went.

HITTING THE BOOKS

FOR LONG HOURS

You dreamt a terrific dream in class. In the middle of your dream, you heard a booming "THUD!" Senior Marcus Cook remembered, "I fell asleep in Mr. Cooksey's class. He dropped a brick in front of my desk to wake me up."

If you asked any student, it is likely that they have had a similar experience. Why did people fall asleep? Quite obviously, they were tired. Many students stayed up to the wee hours of the morning doing homework, watching T.V, or just talking on the phone. By the time their alarms went off early the next morning, students were so exhausted that they could barely drag themselves out of bed.

Studying was a student's worst nightmare. Yet people did almost anything to gather information in their brains. Junior Shoshana Lewin said she "tried to form Romeo and Juliet into a rap song during freshman year." Cook said he "played a tape over and over while he was sleeping."

As an alternative to studying, students often tried to get out of taking tests or completing various class tasks. "We were running the mile in gym. I faked a cramp and fell onto the ground, moaning," said Lewin.

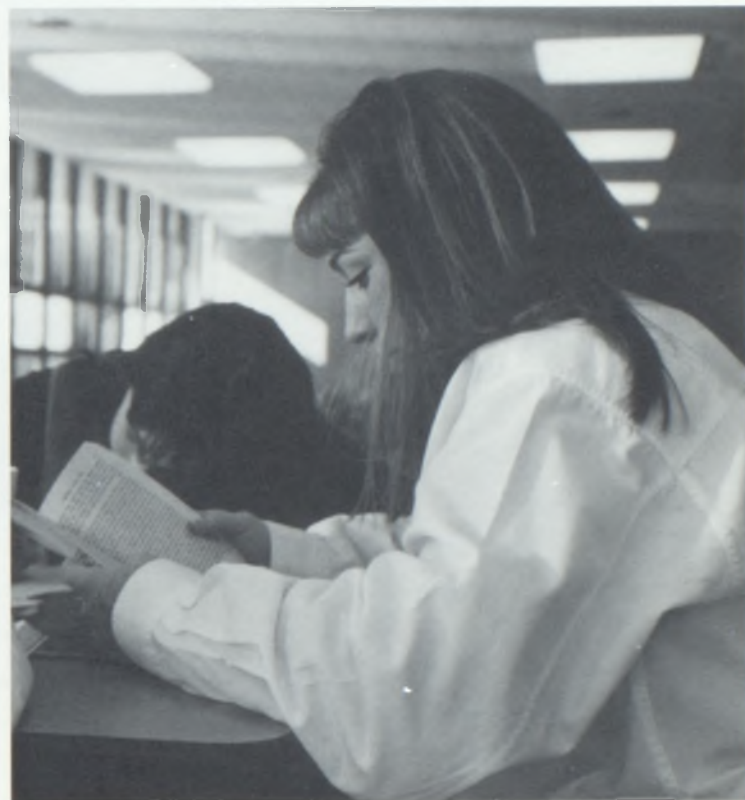

By the time this year came to an end, students had tried almost everything. In our highly competitive school, only the people who put in the long, hard hours studying for their tests got the grades to prove it.

STUDENTS' MINDS

Do you ever find yourself stuck on a math problem, struggling to write a thesis, or just in need of a little extra help in some of your classes? Fortunately, Deerfield provides various resource centers, namely, Math Learning Lab (MLL), WERCS, WERCS+, Language Lab, Computer Lab, and the Learning Resource Center (LRC), which greatly benefit the students' needs.

Serving as an environment where students can work on math homework as well as receive one-on-one attention nine periods a day, the MLL is an extremely worthwhile center. The WERCS complex, composed of student and adult tutors, is available to the students for discussions of literary themes and revisions of student papers. In addition to the WERCS, the WERCS+ provides assistance in reading comprehension, organizational skills and writing skills in all subject areas.

For those students who are taking a foreign language, the Language Lab allows students to practice their listening skills through the use of videotapes and audiocassettes. "The Language Lab is a great way to learn more about Spanish, and I look forward to finding out what is going to happen on the video soap opera called 'Destinos'," said Senior Jeff Fleischer. The Computer Lab offers classes in word processing and has an abundance of computers for students to use before, during, and after school. The LRC provides an alternative classroom environment for students who require more individualized attention.

STUDENTS FEEL AT HOME

Roaming down Q-Hall one will observe the many exciting changes going on in the Math Department. Students are just now becoming accustomed to the two year old Math Resource Center. There is always a helping hand waiting in this room or a TI-82 to borrow. Chairperson Marvin Doubet has explained that the department is encouraging more usage of this resource by having mandatory math lab assignments for students. Miss Mandel's teaching assignment was increased from part time to full time.

Just as the math environment is constantly changing, so is the Science Department. Many new teachers include Mr. Esgar, Mr. Isoye, and Mr. Winiacki. The science department offered Physics Technology this year. This two semester class met three periods a week and was coordinated with the content sequence of physics classes. This class primarily dealt with technological problem-solving.

Do you ever find that you needed someone to lean on? Well, luckily, there were guidance counselors available for school and social purposes. The comfortable atmosphere of the guidance department was definitely welcomed by the many students under the pressure of a strenuous DHS schedule.

IMPROVEMENTS PROVE DEPARTMENTS'

STRONG POINTS

The Social Studies Department's strength has been known by the students for quite some time, but it was not until recently that it became recognized by the state as well. Deerfield scored the highest in Illinois on the Constitution Test, proving to themselves and the rest of the schools in Illinois the depth of their department. Said one Junior, "A.P. US History is the hardest class I have ever taken, but I can honestly say that I have really learned from it."

Although ex-English Department Head Mr. Hollenbeck was greatly missed this year, the English Department continued to change and expand under the leadership of Dr. Hebson. One change that was made was the replacement of A.P. Senior English teacher Mr. Hollenbeck with Mrs. Goldberg. One aspect that changed in the A.P. English program was that now anyone who desired to take an A.P. English course could do so without completing a lengthy application, which was the same policy the other departments abided by. Another change was the addition of Media Production, a course which allowed students to gain experience in the areas of television, newspaper, and yearbook production and earn course credit.

The Foreign Language Department maintained its reputation for excellence in both its teaching and its overall curriculum. Over this summer, a group of seniors traveled with Mrs. Winer to Spain to learn about the Spanish culture and improve their fluency in the language. Said Senior Loren Salit, "Spain was so much fun! My Spanish was so good by the time I came home that when I went to Mexico over winter break, I was practically fluent!"

OPPORTUNITIES ALLOW STUDENTS TO

EXPAND HORIZONS

It was easy to take for granted the wide range of choices of physical education classes that were offered at DHS, even though the year before students were limited when registering for P.E. This year, the new P.E. curriculum offered many different options for juniors and seniors. Team Sports I and II, Aquatics, Outdoor Education, Weight Training, Individual Racquet Sports, Early Bird gym and Junior Leaders composed the list of courses.

In the Applied Arts Department, many students learned about technology, architecture, business and child care. Hands-on learning was the key for these classes. In Child Development, students worked with the children enrolled in day care three days a week.

A change that took place in the Fine Arts Department was the hiring of a new acting teacher, Mr. Menninger. Replacing Mr. Hirsch, he began this year on a strong note with the production of STUNTS. The A.P. artists this year were able to travel down to Michigan Avenue to see an exhibit done by their assistant A.P. Art teacher, Miss Arian.

Slow Start

VICTORIOUS

"Fight, fight, fight, including a close one against Deerfield High! Win, win, win, Deerfield High! Fight on Deerfield, on to victory," the band played and the fans sang at every football game. All of the spirit really produced some fun Saturday afternoons, but unfortunately, it did not always contribute to victorious Warriors. In his second season, Head Coach Jamie Harrington and the 1994 Warriors turned a struggling start into a fairly triumphant season. After three difficult losses, Deerfield went on a three game winning streak including a victory over rival Highland Park. The Warriors then lost their next two contests, including a close one against powerhouse Maine South and a heart breaker against Maine West on Homecoming. The Warriors ended the season with a glimmer of hope by blowing out the Niles North Vikings in the final game of the season.

Standout players on this team included Senior defensive tackle Bob Dziejniech, Senior linebackers Dave Ryan and Harold Glickson and Senior halfback Tom Zelski. Though the Warriors had a losing season, they played a lot better than their record indicated, many of the games being very close.

Silent Day

Loud On The Court

TURNS

A silent revolution overcame the Deerfield volleyball team. They fell silent for a day of school to help them communicate on the court. Not talking certainly helped the team, as there was visible improvement in the players. Unfortunately, the game against Glenbrook North did not turn out in their favor. Despite the loss of the game against their rival their silent period gave them a lot more energy and unity throughout the game.

Regardless of a few tough loses, the team still managed to place third in Conference. The Warrior Women had some strong wins, especially in the Lake Forest Invite. In the end, the team was upset that they didn't place first in Conference, as they had done for the past three years. Nevertheless, it was easy to look past the failures to see the successes of this close knit team.

Not only did the unity of the team help them come alive, but so did the superb efforts of the players. Seniors Betsy Sailhamer, Kim Kluender and Reni Towns were named to the All-Conference team.

Junior Lisa Reuwer added, "This season was very fun and exciting. The team bonded and everyone was able to get along with each other."

Eighteen furry red heads could be spotted throughout the halls of Deerfield High School on the day of a soccer game. The players were sporting new hats. The reality was, according to Captain Senior Jim Brown, that, "the hats were more of a fashion statement than for keeping us warm."

The Varsity Boys' Soccer team began the season with high expectations that, in the end, they did not meet. With 12 returning lettermen, Coach Miller expected 15 victories from his team. Due to injuries, however, they ended up with a 6 and 15 record. Jim Brown said, "We came into the season with many experienced Varsity players (seniors), but we were unable to find one solid rotation that worked every time."

Building team spirit was a major goal for this year's players. Senior Cliff Haefke led the team before each game in the "Zigga - Zaggi" cheer. Every day the school heard the chant, "Zigga Zaggi Zigga Zaggi hey! Zigga Zaggi Zigga Zaggi hey! Shot! Goal! Shot! Goal! Who shot it? We did! Who are we? WARRIORS!"

The team started out on the right note, winning their first few games. Soon after, injuries began to pile up. The coach best summed up the season in one word: "unfortunate." However, the players will never forget the fuzzy red hats and the good times they had together.

Team Togetherness

In a Successful Season

RESULTS

"There is no 'I' in team" was the motto for this year's Girls' Tennis team. Approaching the Girls' locker room, a bulletin board containing the team's logo in large letters appeared and everyone knew that success could only be achieved by working together. Ten seniors and two juniors displayed their talent on the Varsity team. Senior co-captains Debbie Ruffalo and Beth Milligan, along with Senior Tracie Loring were selected to the All-Conference Team. Friday night pasta parties and Saturday morning breakfasts allowed the team to ease their anxiety before the big tournaments. "The team parties were a great chance to socialize with the various team levels. They were always fun and relaxing with great food," said Junior Michelle Kruss.

Despite the team's strong performance at the All-Conference, they were unable to overtake rivals Glenbrook North and Highland Park. "Deerfield always gave us a tough fight. We were down 1-10% and remained in the game until the very last point was played," said Coach Gluck. Small Team MAKES Time for Tee

There were no afternoon finger sandwiches and cookies for these dedicated athletes. Day after day, rain or shine, the Warrior golfers carried on the fighting attitude that characterized DHS sports teams. The Girls' Golf team may not have won any trophies, but most members achieved their personal best. More importantly, they were winners in friendship.

The team bonded prior to early morning matches by eating breakfast together, compliments of Coach Fair. Junior Suzy Delrahim raved, "The Dunkin Donuts were the highlight!"

Losing the number one player from last year was devastating for the team. When asked about this year's golf team Coach Fair responded, "Oh, dear!" There were frustrating moments for everybody, especially Sophomore Jenny Yue whose golf clubs were stolen. "I like golf a lot, but since I only have three clubs, I find it difficult."

Losing Senior Matt Plisz early in the year called for a variety of adjustments for the playoffs. Jesse Ostrow starred in Regionals at Buffalo Grove, shooting an impressive 79, thus advancing to Sectionals. Sophomore Jeff Rosenberg also performed superbly, missing Sectionals by one stroke.

If this season was any indication of what next year will be like, holes in one should be abundant.

Rabbit Heads PROVE

As they walked to the beach in Prairie, Wisconsin, Junior Maggie Hoag and Senior Tina Milnes opened their mouths in horror. On the side of the beach lay a rabbit head with an eerie smile. This decapitated animal, as gross and strange as it may be, brought the Girls' Field Hockey team a lot of good luck. Stranger yet was the fact that another dead rabbit was found in the goalie box, leaving Junior Sarah Gerhart to philosophize that "it was fate!" The team proceeded to play great that day, carrying with them the luck from their dead rabbits.

The team's ability to play well this season was partly attributed to the summer field hockey camps attended by the majority of the team members. This increased the team's level of competitive experience.

The plaid Warrior women matched up against outstanding teams such as Oak Park and Lake Forest. In Regionals, they won the first game, but lost the second, leaving them to play the top ranked team in Sectionals. The girls failed to make it to the State tournament.

The outstanding Seniors will be greatly missed next year. The powerful offense was led by the high scoring All-State members Carole Lickfett, Staci Dorman, and Becca Bruzzer; the defense was led by Liz Kollar. Together, these two units worked to make a strong Warrior team. While good players help to create a strong team, the rabbit heads did not hurt either.

Memories

The Run

"One,...two,...three,..." counted the Girls' Cross Country team before the Conference meet. As soon as the runners reached ten, a calmness could be felt amongst the runners. This peacefulness allowed each girl to understand how the others were feeling, thus promoting the team unity that the runners had strived for all season.

Making friends in all places was characteristic of these runners. "When we traveled to Peoria for an overnight trip to run the state course, Charlie (their bus driver) brought us all plastic covered pillows and blankets to sleep on the bus," said Senior Sarah Garvey. And once they got there, Charlie stayed with the team, sharing a room with Coach Gasper. This is one of several memories that will stay the runners for the rest of their lives.

The five seniors who will be graduating will not be forgotten. Said Junior Sarah Rozensky, "I am really going to miss the seniors. I have been running with them for the past three years."

So, as the team sits in their circle, we hear the faint echo of their voices, counting, "eight,...nine,...ten."

LEAD

Biking, hills, ice cream, and stretching may all be topics that appear to have no relationship to cross country. Yet, all of these played a vital role in preseason conditioning and carbo-loading. Under the leadership of new Head Coach Chuck Wathen, cross-training was a major component of the boys' preseason workouts. As a competitive runner himself, Coach Wathen competed in several races, which allowed him to incorporate his knowledge and experience to improve the boys' training program. "It was a real change coaching the boys. It was a lot of fun. I saw a lot of improvement in our team," said Coach Wathen.

Also new to the team were eight energetic and talented freshmen. Winning Conference at the freshmen level was a testimony to their present talent and a sign of their future potential. Senior Varsity Runner John Madden praised the effort of the freshmen, saying "The freshmen boys were the inspiration for the team. They proved to be successful in every meet. Their future will be glorious."

Although the Varsity squad was plagued by injuries, strong contributions from Seniors Jared Gonsky, David Rotenberg, Joe Furco, Jeremy Lundquist, and John Madden proved their amazing perseverance. Standing out in the spotlight was Senior John Madden. By placing second in Conference, he was appropriately named the team MVP and was selected to the All-Conference Team. Obviously, the gallons of ice cream consumed, and the miles of land covered running and biking definitely paid off.

Diving into of Victory

A POOL

"A rebuilding year" is what Coach Sheri Meyer expected due to the many inexperienced additions to the Girls' Swim Teams. Instead what she got was three state qualifiers, namely Senior diver Lisa White, Junior diver Emily Coleman and Junior swimmer Zsejke Tusa. Nor would she have predicted that Lisa White, who was seeded 42nd going into the state tournament, to execute such remarkable dives that would earn her the 24th position in state. All of these feats were rooted in difficult practices and the swimmers' drive to surpass previous accomplishments.

Typically Varsity swimmers began this competitive sport at a very young age through swimming programs like COHO. However, this year the team was composed of only four Varsity letter winners. This small number required the entire team to find some way to unify this diverse group. The swimming team is definitely known for having the most extensive practices. Everyday by six o'clock in the morning, the swim team can be found in either the pool or the weightroom, and after school they return to the pool for another two hour practice. Since the swimmers' and divers' success depend on their composite performance, they must learn to share pool time and work together. Junior swimmer Becky Weinberg jokingly remarked, "We know to be nice to the divers, for if we are not, they are bound to dive on top of us during practice."

Apparently, the team was able to overcome their lack of experience, because while juggling the balance between swimming and diving, they finished second in conference. This team definitely made a huge splash in Deerfield swimming history.

Tough Guys WORK

T o g e t h e r

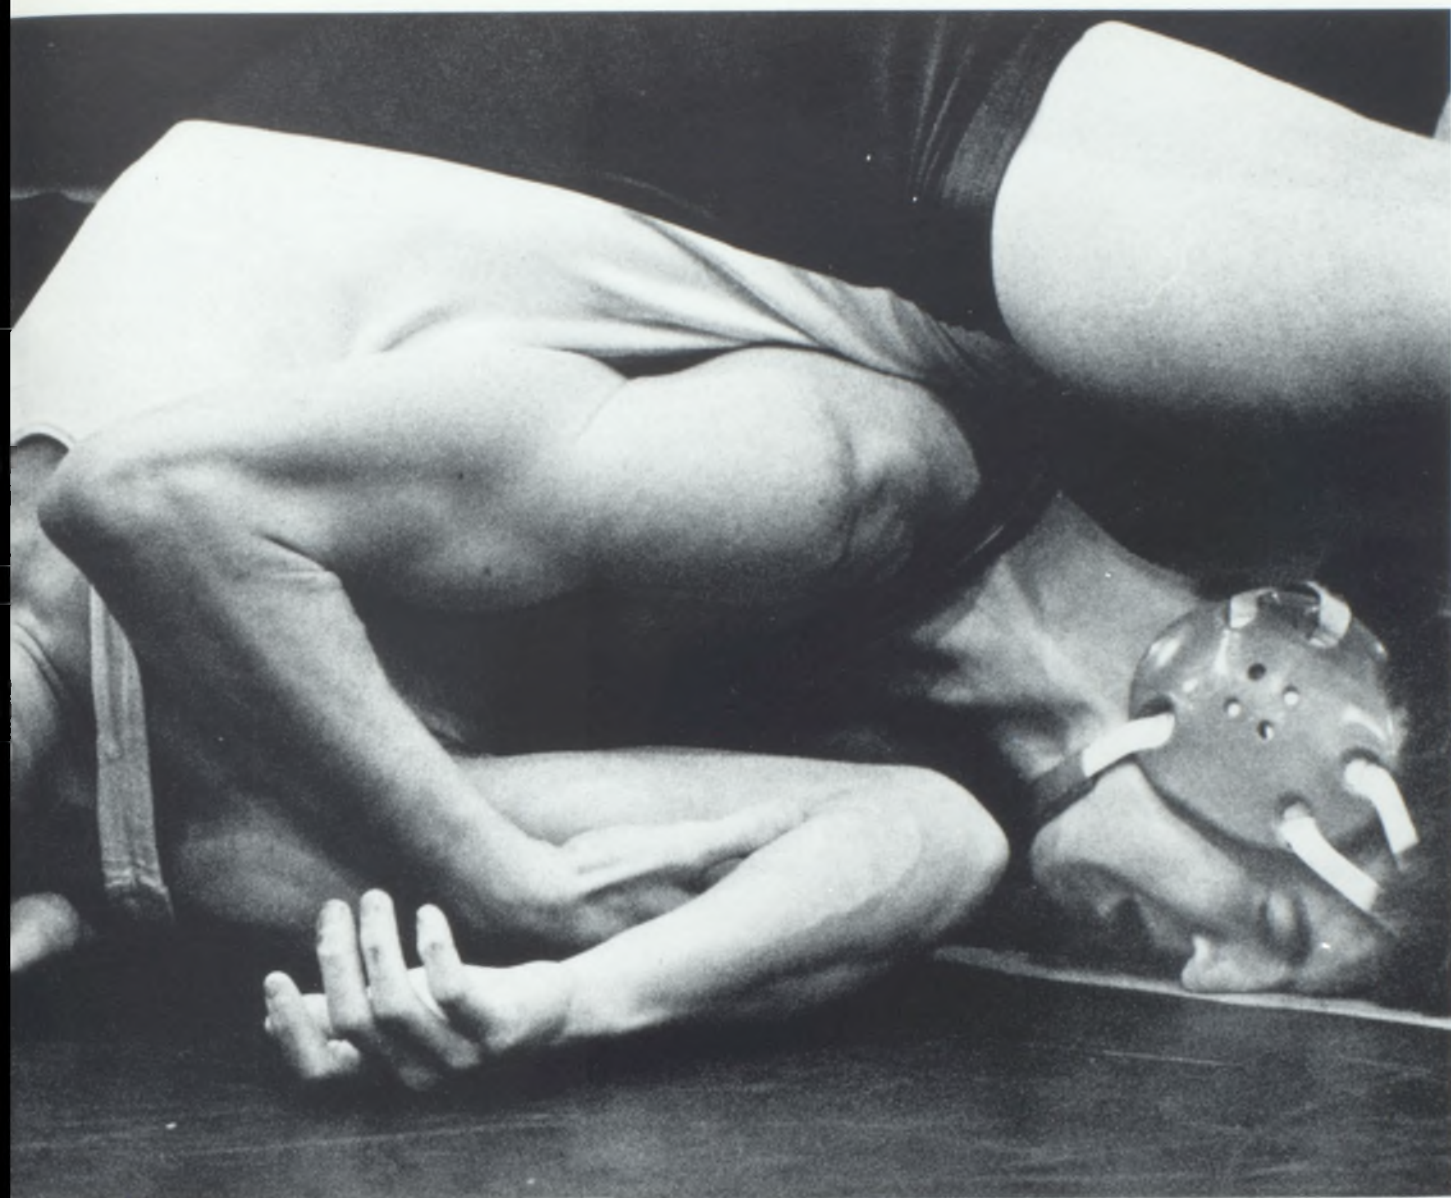

What do Hulk Hogan and Senior R.J. Meehan have in common? They're both lean, mean wrestling machines. R.J.'s record was 20-3 at one point in the season. At the St. Pat's meet with only one second remaining in his match, R.J. pinned his opponent to the mat, achieving a clutch victory for the Warriors.

Grueling practices and long hours led to the togetherness of this year's team. The team's training program consisted of afterschool practices, lifting in the weight room and in the wrestling room, as well as working on techniques.

A new facet was added to the wrestling program this year called "Little Warriors," which prepared six to thirteen year-olds for high school wrestling. Head Coach Mr. Battista was very proud of this valuable program. He strongly believed that wrestling builds physical and mental stamina as well as self-confidence. According to him, "The wrestlers are all winners."

According to Junior Faith Schneider,

"The best asset to our team was that we got along so well. The time we spent at Buffalo Joe's, sledding, and, of course, the Hoagie Hut was so much fun!"

This year's team had three All-Conference players: Sophomore

Elizabeth "Squig" Ori, and Seniors Katie Sullivan and Reni Towns. The loss of these two seniors will be felt greatly, but this young team will only continue to be successful. The three freshmen (Sarah Kelley, Jocelyn Lakani, and Julie Seward) and two sophomores (Squig Ori and Ashlee Braet) will continue to keep this team alive. Because these young players gained experience this year, they will be able to build on this knowledge and teamwork next season.

Swimming OFF TO

State Meet

Jumping into an icy cold pool at 6:30 in the morning was normal for boys who swam and dove. Dedication was the key for successful swimming. And dedicated was one thing the boys swimmers definitely were. "Warm-up is 2000 yards. Then you do the main set, it's normally about one hour," said Senior Dan Mitchell. Ahh, a typical day at practice for the swim team. This hard work paid off as seven swimmers and divers qualified for the state tournament. Seniors David Wollner, Marc Randall, Alan Layfer, Joe Furco and Junior Ewa Hu and Sophomores Billy Dim and Jeremy Hoders all qualified.

This year, Randall set a new school record in the 200 Individual Medley. Accomplishments like these epitomized the season. The team prided themselves in their team spirit and unity. Said Ewa Hu, "All the time that we spent as a team really made the season so much fun, these guys are like my brothers."

Holding On

Pressure

UNDER

Nights full of fun, friends, and food were common for this year's gymnasts. After big meets, they would have a slumber party or at least go out for dinner.

Attaining first place in Conference was a feat in itself. Although the title was shared with Glenbrook North, Junior Charlie Lewitz commented, "We were so happy to win Conference that the fact that GBN tied us didn't even matter." Charlie, along with Senior Lisa White, Juniors Emily Coleman, Amy Miekina and Freshman Stacy Furco were named to the All-Conference Team.

The gymnasts have many memories, good and bad, of the season. One instance particularly stood out in their minds. At one away meet, the team realized that they had accidentally left their music at school. Fortunately, they were able to borrow music from the school that was hosting the meet and were still able to compete. Stacy Furco did her floor routine to music that she had never heard before. Although she finished before the music ended, she still received a respectable score. Experiences like this one, as well as the many long nights with teammates, made for a memorable season.

The basketball team clinched two important tournament championships, the St. Viator Thanksgiving Tournament and the Wheeling Hardwood Classic trophy. In the latter tournament, Sophomore Ryan Hogan was named MVP. Prior to his injury, this impressive sophomore broke both the scoring average and free throw percentage records at DHS.

After his injury, the team still kept up a 13-3 record. The outstanding play of Senior Seth Benzinger and Junior Mike Casey contributed to this continued success. Under the leadership of Senior Co-Captain Brain Panek, the team kept up its great playing and enthusiasm. Throughout the season, fans couldn't wait to arrive at a game to see Benzinger slam dunk a ball or Senior Ben Glazer hit another three.

Students Taste

Whoever said that activities in high school do not prepare students for life after Deerfield obviously never participated in Forensics, Student Congress, Model United Nations, or DECA. These organizations provided students the opportunity to utilize their talents in public speaking, debate, politics, and business management. Forensics members prepared various speeches in a range of categories and used these speeches to compete against other schools.

Imitating roles of U.S. Congressmen, members of Student Congress wrote their own bills and then debated them against teams from other schools. The future business people of tomorrow composed DECA. The group traveled to Springfield, Illinois and other states to compete in national competitions.

Improving

CONCERN. Whether it was treating each other with kindness, solving problems, or even improving our environment, organizations such as CARE, Earthworks, SOS, and Peer Helping provide a variety of outreach services.

Realizing that prejudices exist in the "real world," CARE educated students on these issues. As head of the recycling program, Earthworks' goal was to make the school more environmentally conscious.

By raising scholarship money for seniors, collecting food at clothing shelters, and befriending children at the Robert Taylor Homes, SOS was known for its beneficial services. The Random Acts of Kindness Club was founded following the principles of SOS. While some may remember Peer Helpers as people who dressed strangely, others realize that Peer Helping was unique because students learn to assist their peers. "Through the years that I have done Peer Helping, I learned skills that help me on a day-to-day basis in dealing with my friends, my family, everyone!" said Junior Julie Samuels.

Students

When 50 people gathered every Friday during fifth period, they did a lot more than just eat. Student Council, led by President Josh Weiss, spent 42 minutes weekly planning activities such as Lock-In, School Chest, and the Kick-Off dance.

Another important group was Student Activities Board.

Comprised of the leaders from many organizations, this group met to discuss problems and ways to improve the school.

Seniors got the chances to be P.E. Leaders or Senior Advisors. Both let the seniors interact with the underclassmen and gave them responsibility. Participants were commended for their effort in providing fun activities for the student body.

Tutors Sacrifice

While the majority of DHS students are eating breakfast or singing in the shower at 7:30 a.m., over 100 dedicated tutors are entering E114 and E116 to aid students with their studies. If one walked into WERCS, WERCS+, or the library any period of the day, they would find tutors who had given up a free period to help students who needed assistance. Sophomore Mentors were paired with Freshman English students to guide them through their English course. In the WERCS, upperclassmen provided underclassmen with help in English classes. Next door, WERCS+ tutors offered study strategies and advice in all subjects. Tutors and tutees constantly learned from one another. Tutors were rewarded by the expanded minds and academic progress of their tutees.

In the spirit of Valentine's Day, many students bought bright red heart lollipops saying either "Te amo" or "Je t'aime." The Stage approach to Deerfield dancing. It was more modern than in year's past.

And the winner was... "Senior Tom Zelski!" The first Mr. DHS was announced in front of an audience supporting School Chest. Sponsored by GIMA, this competition showed what real Senior Men were made of. GIMA continued the tradition of organizing Tumabout and Women in Sports Day.

Threatrix again put on their annual scene night which was a huge success. This group offered many acting opportunities to students, regardless of their age.

Every Monday morning, at 9:02, the fiber optics went on faithfully, displaying the weekly WDHS morning news. The focus of this year's news team was to lay the ground work for future DHS television. Approaching the school on a Saturday morning, one might have wondered why there were so many cars in the parking lot. Kids, ranging from two to ten years old, were in the pool being taught how to swim by Guard members. This was a very time consuming and strenuous job, but, nonetheless, very rewarding.

Being a Student Athletic Trainer was also not an easy job. Before every athletic practice and game, players from all different sports came to these trainers to help prepare themselves, whether it be taping up limbs or just getting a thermos of water.

Anyone that participated on a Varsity sport was invited to join the Varsity Club. Their main job was to raise money for the school's sports teams. They held many bake sales and often could have been found selling Deerfield sportswear.

Sounds

In the fall, M-hall was filled with the sounds of holiday music. The Treble Ensemble, Concert Choir, and Chorale rehearsed challenging music for the Winter Concert under the direction of Mrs. Akers. Choraliers traveled and performed throughout the Chicago area with their new director, Mr. Ladd. They performed at places such as the Palmer House and State Street.

In preparation for their Spring Concert and tour of St. Louis, the choirs worked on a 30 minute piece, Gloria. Their final performance of the year was the "Music Revolutions" Banquet, where music was performed from different eras. But, no matter how hard the choirs worked, there was always plenty of time for fun.

"Go! Fight! Win!" The echoes of the Deerfield Varsity cheerleaders could be heard all the way in the front hall during the high spirited basketball games. The small squad came together this year to support the successful football and basketball teams.

Cheerleaders were not the only ones with spirit. As Senior pom-pon member Beth Horwitz said, "The pom's spirit has really improved this year. We love not only performing,

There was also an addition to this year's cheering women. They were the Freshman/Sophomore Spirit Squad who got to cheer and pom. It was started because "Freshmen did not have the opportunity to participate on the Varsity pom - pon or cheerleading squads," said sponsor Ms. Brunn.

During their free time students took advantage of the wide array of activities that were offered. Company, the advanced theater class, enabled students to write, direct, produce, and perform their own shows.

Although they couldn't be seen at work, Stage Crew was vital to the productions. Stage Crew worked to build sets and make final preparations for the shows.

STEP, Students Together for Education and Prevention, creatively reached out to the community to enforce a drug free policy.

Operation Snowball offered both Deerfield and Highland Park students a weekend in a stress-free environment. "Snowball is the ultimate bonding experience!" explained Sophomore Amy Rubenstein.

Hours and hours of work went into producing this yearbook. Here are Seniors Tracie Loring and Jessy Haspel and Junior Julie Samuels working hard in the O*YAD office during their 6th period Media Productions class. For 42 minutes every day, these editors worked on the yearbook, designing spreads and writing copy, while eating their lunches. They also returned to this room at 3:24 to diligently work through all hours of the night. And as it all ends, they hope that you enjoy this yearbook and would like to thank you for making all of the memories that made up this book. Have a great summer and see you next year! Photo by Nancy Ziemba.

COLOPHON - The 1250 copies of the 1995 O*YAD were printed by Josten's Printing and Publishing Company in State College, PA. The 9X12, 204 page book was printed on 80 lb gloss paper and was produced by the faithful yearbook staff at DHS. Body copy was 10 point Optima and captions were 8 point Optima. The fonts in the yearbook logo were Times, Nofret Italic, Stencil, Madrone, and Mistral. Student Life headlines were in 36 point GillSans Ultrabold. Bite Of Realty was written in 18 point GillSans Ultrabold. Academic headlines were in 16 point and 30 point Stencil. Sport headlines was printed in 32 point GillSans Ultrabold, 30 point GillSans Condensed, and 36 point Willow. The font used in the Scoreboard was 14 point Verticla 300% and 4 point Helvetica. The People section titles were done in 72 point Willow and all other writing was Optima. Senior Tributes were printed in 8 point Optima and headlines were printed in 65 point Willow. The Real World DHS Logo was done in 43 point Times, 30 point Nofret Italic, 45 point Stencil, 40 point Madrone, and 55 point Mistral. The index was done in 8 point Optima. This was produced using Quark Xpress 3.2 and Microsoft Word 5.1. The book was produced on an assortment of computers in K130. Underclass and Senior Portraits, group photos and some candid were provided by Halterman Photography. Some sport candid were given to us by Pioneer Press. Sports team photos were taken by Visual Sports Network. The cover was created in four colors with help from Jostens plant. There is a stereogram in the upper right hand corner.

As we sit in front of one of our two barely functioning computers in K130, possibly the only room in DHS that does not have any windows, on a warm spring day, we feel that there are many people that we need to thank. Each one was necessary in their own way to this fine publication.

First is the one and only Monty, M.G., Homey G., or, obviously GRAMINS!!!! What would we have done without her? Well, a lot more in Dallas,.... No, seriously! She put up with so much. We'll always remember the night when we were hard at work and MG was sound asleep, dreaming of Jimmy, on the yearbook floor. It was only 12:00 a.m. What was she thinking going to bed so early? In all REALITY, Miss Gramins, you are the best. We will never forget this year or all that you helped us. After everything that we have been through, we know that you will invite Jessie, Julie, Tracie, Nancy, (and maybe Aaron) to your wedding and definitely the reception after!!!!!!

We also owe our deepest gratitude to Kathy Brunn. She was always more than willing to do whatever was needed, especially the Senior Superlatives and those wonderful surveys. Her cheery attitude always helped brighten the dark, dreary room that we spent so many hours in. And on top of everything, we think that her and Coach Kapps are so cute!

Thank you to the following people: Jennifer Rafael, David Loring, Jessica Axelrod, Jessica Weisbach, Jenny Yue, Katie Taney, Laura Shanker, Heather Blair, Merritt Rochman, Ally Holleb, Beth Milligan, Lindsey Schy, Beth Horwitz, Julie Dim, Carley Petesch, Lindsay Cohn, Randi Hirsch, Deena Godbole, Shona Gorvich, Leanna Katz, Beth Kronfeld, David Nathan, Abby Nathan, Maggie Hoag, Amanda Rubel, Leslie Crane, Becky Trayber, Mike Bramnick, Mary Shapiro, Matt Radzinski, Julie Seward, Jen Schaller, Mitchell Kim, Brian Betticker, Brie Mazz, Aryn Meherally, Elise Wold, David Swartz, Lalitha Gazula, Adam Fox, Jason Rivkin, Lisa Caplan, Caroline Berger, and Ricca Pobre.

We extend an extra special thanks to these people: Michelle Kruss, Organizations Editor, Laura Septon, Index Editor, Adena Horwitz, Senior Tribute Editor, Karly Kaufman, Assistant Art & Layout Editor, and Rob Lang, Boys' Sports Editor for going above and beyond the call of duty. Also to Bonnie Banoff for always being there when we needed you and appearing on more pages than any of us. Thank you also to Andi Aud, Academics Editor, Kim Kessler, Senior Section Editor, Jorie Zabel, Girls' Sports Editor, Debbie Rafael and Faith Schneider, Student Life Editors, Laura Swibel, Underclass Editor, Jon Stern, Computer Graphics. Thank you to Miss Arain, because without her we would never have had a cover. Thank you to Rich Stern and Ms. Marks, who were so understanding during our deadlines. Rich was always willing to answer our endless questions and Ms. Marks never once complained about us taking over her office.

Thank you Photography Editor Nancy Ziemba. The pictures in the book look great. Thanks to you the faces in the group shots were all bigger than an eraser head. All of your hard work and willingness to go to any length to get a picture was well worth it.

Oh, and there was this other kid. His name was Aaron Crane and he was our Art & Layout Editor. Since we didn't see him after March 13, and never past 6:00 p.m., we don't have anything to say about him. No, just kidding. Thank you for all of your layouts and all of your laughs. How much fun did we have? We hope that you felt tough because the only man around because we think that you are the toughest and we love you to death! Just think, you still have two more years left! Lucky you!! P.S. We're still waiting for your dinner. After all, Julie missed the ONE day that you brought food.

Speaking of Julie Samuels, our phenomenal Copy Editor (oops, that was editorializing).... First, we would like to thank ourselves for picking the one junior who doesn't do homework. Julie, when we think of you, we think of a bathroom. I mean the bottom line is that we could never forget the sink experience, the day you broke our GRAND toilet seat, the gas station on the way to the Bulls game, or your lesson on feminine products to Aaron. In all fairness you were our honorary third editor-in-chief. We never would have made our deadlines without your help, often to 1:30 a.m. Julie, your friends in Dallas, Alan and Dan, really helped us out....NOT! Maybe, if we had purchased more than that one 8 x10 xerox of you we would have been more successful with our plans.

And finally, an ode to our two Editors-In-Chief, Tracie Loring and Jessy Haspel.

Tracie - Without you, it is quite possible that the yearbook staff would have starved and this book would have no captions. In our minds we will always hold a picture of you screaming, "There is a jail across the street!" It scares us at how good you were at being Gramins on Senior Teach Day; you should consider being a yearbook adviser yourself one day. Your dependability and patience helped us keep our sanity (even when you lost yours). Now that it is all done, we know that it could never have happened without you. Jessy - Well, well, well...This is at the point where it's like, "What can you possibly write?" Your dedication and perseverance made this book what it is — S_ _ _! Just kidding. Without your incredible attention to detail you know that this book would have been ripped to shreds by the critics at the convention where the book will win first place. Don't forget that you owe Julie one bottle of, um, mouthwash. To the biggest mood of all times, we guess that your mom has saved you.....for now at least. In all REALITY, the two of you will be sorely missed. The long nights we spent here have made us a family, and like in any family, we hate to see you go. But, for our two big sisters, we know that if you hadn't gotten out when you did, you might have gone crazy, and we want the best for you. Good luck in everything you ever do. We love you!!

A FAREWELL FROM
YOUR 1995 EDITORS.

IT'S BEEN REAL!

Obituary, May 23, 1995. Here lies O*YAD editors Jessy Haspel, Nancy Ziemba, Tracie Loring, Aaron Crane, and Julie Samuels. Too many hours in K130 led to the loss of the mental capabilities of these fine students. They literally went over the edge. They are survived by the ever faithful Ms. Gramins and Ms. Brunn. They will always be remembered for their ingenious work on the 1995 yearbook. They would have been missed by family and friends, but after a full year of working on yearbook, they no longer had any. As another year passes, we say goodbye to these wonderful people and offer a few words of advice to the '96 staff: GET OUT WHILE YOU STILL CAN!!!

A Real World Goodbye

A year has come, a year has gone. What really transpired in that time? Well, more than just the customary homework and studying. Hawaiian Luau, "Oh What A Night," "One Starry Night," STUNTS '94: Tales From the Script, My Favorite Year, "Let's Go Crazy," "Moving Violations," Senior Teach Day, Powder Puff, Ethnocenter, Mudfest, School Chest, and many more activities dotted the days of everybody's calendars for nine months. Activities and schoolwork piled up, until no one thought they would survive. But, when June rolled around, students wondered how the year went by so fast. Didn't school start just yesterday? It had been nine long months, and by the time it was over, students were only hoping that the Real World would be so much fun.

At 3:24 p.m., there is a mad rush to the parking lot, where students quickly pile into their cars, only to encounter a traffic jam of cars at either exit. Junior Sandy Madera is fortunate enough to be first in line at the traffic light. (above) Photo by Nancy Ziemba.

Celebrating the evening. Junior Adam Kahn and Senior Kim Kroll dance to the beat of the lively music. Since Turnabout is one of the final dances of the school year, students make sure to find a date so that they can take advantage of these last moments when they are all together. After completing her cross country meet, Senior Katherine Salemi receives a congratulatory hug from a teammate. Throughout the year, students encounter both victory and defeat which prepares them for life in the Real World. (left) Photo by Halterman Photography.

Taking care of business in the boys' bathroom, Junior Mike Stern is thankful that a passing period gives him ample time to find relief. Mike is looking forward to the summer months when he can avoid the lovely Deerfield facilities. (below) Photo by David Swartz.

Completing the show with the grand finale, cast members of "My Favorite Year" appreciate the enthusiastic round of applause from the attentive audience. Being recognized as one of the best productions in recent years was a tribute to the cast's work. (right) Photo by Halterman Photography.
